MAY ACT TODAY

Leaders Hopeful of Forestalling Additional CutsWashington —(P)—The Roosevelt administration took a beating today in its first legislative test of the new congress when a rebellious house refused to approve the $875,000,000 President Roosevelt requested to keep WPA operating until June 30.Washington —(P)—Representative Boland (D-Pa.) said today the house Democratic organization would "make no concerted effort" to obtain restoration of the $150,000,000 pared from the administration's relief bill by the house appropriations committee.Boland, the party's whip, made the announcement just before the house resumed debate on the converted measure.He and his 16 assistant whips had met for more than an hour with Speaker Bankhead, Democratic Leader Reuben, and Representative McCormack (D-Mass.), chairman of the Democratic caucus.Asked about the meeting afterward in connection with his bearing on relief, Rayburn remarked merely:"We are going to pass a relief bill today."Representative Woodrum (D-Va.), in charge of the converted measure, took the floor today just before the bill was opened to amendment and said he wanted to "brush away some of the cobwebs" that were spun during debate.The first, he said, is the idea that a Democrat is taking a rap at the president every time he does not vote for "every penny" recommended for appropriation, by the budget bureau."That is childish and ridiculous," he asserted.

G.O.P. Debate Ended

Earlier, Representative Dirksen
(R-Ill.) had ended the Republican portion of the debate by urging the house to give the country some assurance it would not "the alleged and proven rottenness in WPA."The appropriation, he said, should be sufficient to last only until congress can investigate the relief agency and take corrective steps.

Against New Cuts

Privately, administration leaders admitted there was little chance of persuading the house to put back the $150,000,000 but that every attempt would be made to forestall any additional reduction.Boland said the whips themselves had "different views" on the relief issue and would "use their individual judgment" on supporting amendment to raise the fund for WPA from $725,000,000, the amount recommended by the appropriations committee, to the $875,000,000 requested by President Roosevelt.Representative Keefe (R-Wis.) told the house Wisconsin voters repudiated the "LaFollette dynasty" in the general election because they were "tired of cheap politics, tired of rabble rousing, tired of government interference in business, tired of government regimentation of agriculture."The Wisconsin voters said "We are tired of political talk of surpluses of milk, wheat and food when men, women and babies are reported hungry." Keefe said, He added the voters were sure "we were going somewhere" but not in the right direction.

Education

Under Pressure

Razing the old Lincoln school building in Wichita, Kas., workmen found a bundle of thirty-five switches hidden under a stairway that had been buried in some thirty years ago. Miss Watkins, principal, enlightened them with the information that they were relics of the days when "lickin' and larnin'" went hand in hand. It seems the children back in those days got it both coming and going.
The home motto was "spare the rod and spoil the child" and the teachers applied the same rule to education. If they were right, it's a wonder we moderns don't lean

CUMMINGS AND MURPHY AT DINNER

'Unfair' EmployerWants Supreme Court to Rule Sitdowner Can't Be FiredWashington —(P)—The national labor relations board urged the supreme court today to rule that sit-down strikers cannot be discharged by a company which has been guaranteed an "unfair labor practice."
Such a decision was sought by Charles Fahy, general counsel of the board. He continued an argument begun yesterday in connection with an order directing the Finstel Metallurgical Corporation of North Chicago to re-employ workers who seized two key buildings in 1937 and held them for nine days.Fahy told the court today that an employer could dismiss an employee for participation in a sitdown strike, if the workman were first reinstated to his position.His statement based on the commission of an "unfair labor practice" by the employer, was made in response to a volley of questions from members of the court.Finstel Argument Max Swiren, Finstel attorney, argued the board had exceeded its authority in seeking to compel the re-employment of men "admittedly discharged" because of participation in the sitdown.After Swiren's argument, the court took the case under advisement.
A final decision is expected in a few weeks.Fahy contended that a workman, no matter how guilty, "continued as an employee if his employer has committed an unfair labor practice."
The board, he said, would require his reinstatement if that would "ef-fectuate the purposes" of the national labor relations act.Justice Stone asked if a man reinstated to his position could then be discharged for participation in the strike."They could be," Fahy replied.
"If they were discharged after reinstatement, and that would be the case.""How long would the employer have to keep them—one day?" Stone asked."There would be no question of time," Fahy said.

Court Hears Pleas

Of Two Convicted

In Securities Case

Madison —(P)—The supreme court today heard the appeals of W. A.
Kenyon and Leon B. Smith, Milwaukee, convicted of selling unregistered securities.Kenyon was sentenced to four concurrent terms of one to three years each, and Smith, two concurrent terms of one year each by Circuit Judge A. C. Hoppmann of Dane county.The state today claimed they sold debenture notes of Tung Industries Inc., which included an offer or option to sell non-assessable common stock in the firm requiring resistance with the state banking commission. Counsel for the two men contended the stock provision was merely a conversion privilege upon which salesmen made no solicitation and needed no registration because the notes matured in less than a year.Lyman Wheeler and Herbert C.
Hirschbeck, Milwaukee, counsel for the defendants, asserted the conversion clause did not affect the legality of the notes or necessitate resistance, and that it was not an offer to sell stock.They argued Kenyon and Smith were guilty of no criminal intent and that the sentence of the circuit court was unreasonable.Fired Over 100

MANY WARNINGS

Former Administrator Before Senate Group
For Third DayWashington —(P)—Harry Hopkins testified today he had discharged "between 100 and 200 persons, for political activity in connection with WPA."The lanky former head of the government relief administration made this statement to the senate commerce committee as he appeared for the third consecutive day to testify on his fitness to become secretary of commerce.Senator Johnson (R-Calif.) asked:
"How many warnings to WPA employees did you issue against political activity?""About six or eight general warnings," Hopkins answered quickly, and then added, "and a great many other specific ones all over the United States."Senator Johnson asked Hopkins how many persons had been discharged for political activity."I can't give you the exact number but it was between 100 and 200 persons," Hopkins said.

Pennsylvania Situation

Senator Guffey (D-Pa.) entered the committee room after the hearings had started and Johnson chose that moment to ask if Hopkins "was familiar with the situation in Pennsylvania?"Hopkins nodded affirmatively.
Guffey gave alert attention."When did you become familiar with it?" Johnson asked."I can't say exactly," Hopkins replied. "In August or September of last year I was discharged six or eight persons."Johnson asked Hopkins if he agreed with a report in which the senate campaign funds committee reported criticized WPA activity in Pennsylvania's elections."We were embarrassed there by local politicians trying to get people to contribute," was the reply. "Most of them were political people not working for the WPA at all."Hopkins said WPA "knew nothing about" some of the Pennsylvania charges and the evidence in support of them until the report of the campaign committee, headed by Senator Sheppard (D-Texas), was published. The report came out after Hopkins had left WPA."I learned this morning," Hopkins told the committee, "that in every case in which WPA got information for the first time an immediate investigation has been ordered apropos of the Sheppard report."

Eight Attorneys are Dropped as Special Counsel for StateMadison —(P)—Governor Heil today notified eight attorneys that their contracts as special counsel for the attorney general have been terminated.Among those notified was Gordon Sinykin, Madison, former counsel to Governor LaFollette, who held two contracts for office and court work.The governor's office said under one of these contracts, dated Nov.
22, 1938, Sinykin had already been paid $1,784.77 for services and $43.75 for expenses.The other contract, dated Dec.
30, 1938, provided for $50 per day in and out of court.Other contracts terminated were held by John Ernest Rowe, Madison; Robert A. Hess, Milwaukee; Leonard C. Fox, Milwaukee;
George E. Hess, Ladysmith, Wis.; Madison; Aaron Levine, Milwaukee; Sidney N. Leshin, Milwaukee; and Ira S. Lorenz, Milwaukee.Murphy, testifying on his handling, as governor, of sitdown strikes in 1937, said that form of strike "is an instrumentality that would undermine and destroy the vital right of ownership and possession of property."The judiciary subcommittee before which Murphy spoke already has approved Murphy's nomination for attorney general, but he asked permission to testify regarding his activities during the sitdown strikes."I have never condoned the sit-down strike or countenanced the disobedience of a court order," Murphy said. "I believe in vigorous law enforcement.""However, when there is widespread disobedience to the law, it is not enough to enforce the law;
it is also necessary to discover and eliminate the causes of the widespread disobedience.""So the Michigan labor situation with which I had to deal involved something more than law enforcement. I was not dealing with a few vicious lawbreakers, but with thousands of self-respecting workers who felt that they had genuine grievances of long standing."Eau Claire Stores are exchange of notes between the two governments.A United States note of Jan. 11,

HOPE FOR DELAY

Not Yet Ready for Active Support of Musso-

ported reliably today to have stepped into Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement visit to Rome by urging Premier Mussolini to keep the peace for one year before demanding fulfillment of Italy's "natural aspirations."From informed German quarters came the report that such a message was delivered by the German ambassador, Hans-Georg Viktor von Mackensen, in the second of two conferences he had yesterday with the Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.Disclosure of the German fuehrer's part in the Rome conversations came as Chamberlain turned from his talks with Pope Pius XI and as results of the talk were being communicated to the United States and French ambassadors to Rome.Significantly, Ambassadors William Phillips and Andre Francois-Poncet were told of the Chamberlain-Mussolini talks of the last two days by the British foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, in separate interviews this morning.Audience With Pope Another notable development of the morning was the British minister's private audience with the holy father at the stately Vatican. Chamberlain and Pope Pius, devoted workers for peace, were together for 30 minutes.Von Mackensen, it was disclosed, called on Ciano for the second time yesterday after close of the formal talks of the two premiers.Hitler's reported request was interpreted as indicating the fuehrer was not ready to make payment to Mussolini for his support at the Munich conference which participated Czechoslovakia and marked a milestone in European history.Informed persons said, however, that Hitler probably would support Italy if—her claims, principally

Doubts New Plants Needed for PlanesRoosevelt Thinks Some May Have to Work 2
Or 3 ShiftsWashington —(P)—President Roosevelt expressed belief today that sufficient plants existed to build new planes for the nation's defense.
Some plants, he added, may have to work two or three shifts.The president told a press conference that the only lag may lie in obtaining a sufficient number of skilled plane factory workmen.Mr. Roosevelt estimated that 15 per cent of the labor needed for the plane-building job would have to be skilled in the aircraft arts. He said the other 85 per cent could be developed rapidly by utilizing labor from automobile and other industries.Some plants, the president asserted, probably would have to be expanded. All the new plants, except certain experimental craft, would be constructed in private factories, he added.The chief executive said new plants would be made in government plants as in the past and that he believed sufficient capacity existed for building all guns required.Asked whether new roads would have to be constructed to move the mobile anti-aircraft and other equipment, the president said a great deal of conversation and interest was being displayed by congress in building transcontinental and north and south highways.

Failed to Enforce Laws, OrdinancesClintonville — The Clintonville Taxpayers' league today began circulating petitions asking an election to recall Mayor A. A. Washburn on charges he "willfully failed or neglected" to enforce laws and ordinances.The petitions also allege that the mayor permitted city officers to draw additional pay for extra services, in violation of the corrupt practices act.Washburn, serving his second term as mayor, said this morning he had "nothing to apologize for,"
and that the petitions were being circulated by "a small group of defeated and disgruntled citizens."Rumors of recall have been rife in Clintonville for some time but the action was not started until the taxpayers' league met Tuesday and elected officers. Heading the move are Edward Felslow, president of the league, William Schumacher, vice president, and Clarence W.
Zachow, secretary and treasurer.

588 Signatures

Men today were placed in each of Clintonville's five wards to seek the necessary 588 signatures, one-third of the vote for mayor a year ago. In that election, Mayor Washburn was reelected after serving one term. He polled 822 votes against 638 for Herman Kratzke, a former mayor, and 304 for S. W.
Brunner, a former city attorney.The league proposes to submit the signed petitions to the county judge for verification as soon as possible and then ask the recall election April 4, the regular date of the spring balloting.John Spengler, Clintonville attorney, has consented to oppose Mayor Washburn in that election and has been endorsed by the Taxpayers' league.A taxpayers' suit to recover money paid to three city officers now is pending in circuit court. They are
C. C. Mullarkey, city attorney, charged with receiving pay for collecting delinquent taxes; Alderman working at the city water and light plant; and Alderman Albert Winter,

Brunete SectorBarcelona —(P)—Informed sources said tonight the government armies had launched a new counteroffensive in the Brunete sector 15 miles west of Madrid in an effort to counteract the insurgents' eastward sweep in northeastern Spain.Fighting was said to be heavy.
The attack apparently began deep west of Madrid and was directed south toward Navacerrada. Weather there was bitter cold.Lerida, Spain (Behind the Insurgent Front) —(P)—The insurgent command announced today a capture of Lerida, 100 miles southwest of Barcelona, and stronghold of the government's defense system along the lower Ebro river.Insurgent officers reported that a Moroccan army corps had hampered its way through government defenses on the left (northeastern) bank of the Ebro and had completed the occupation of Lerida.Tortosa is the chief town of the coastal salient the government had held since last spring thrust a wedge to the Mediterranean coast.(The Ebro formed the main defense line of this salient, which the insurgents' recent gains toward Tarragona have converted into a dangerous trap. The fall of Tortosa might indicate either that the insurgents had broken the Ebro line or that the government was hastily evacuating the Tortosa pocket.)Reserve Board Reports Upswing in BusinessWashington —(P)—The federal reserve board said today the upswing in business which started last summer continued to the end of 1938, lifting the index of industrial production from the May low of 75 to 104 in December.The December figure was only one point higher than November's but it represented a gain in spite of seasonal influences in factory operation. The industrial gain, was accompanied, the board said in its monthly bulletin, by Christmas holiday trade which was better than the previous year's fairly good holiday sales.Employment and pay rolls appear to have increased further from the middle of November to the middle of December," the board added.

Nelson Proposes
New Relief TaxesWants Levies on Telephone Utilities; Beer Taxes for SchoolsMadison —(P)—State Senator Philip E. Nelson (D), Appleton, today introduced bills to raise $3,000,000 of direct relief funds through a tax on telephone utilities and to appropriate $200,000 of beer taxes for special state aids to needy schools.The bills provide that both forms of aids shall be subjected to control by the emergency board and are to be allowed to counties and school districts which cannot meet their financial burdens.The relief bill imposes a graduated tax on both the gross exchange and toll business of the telephone utilities.The levy on gross receipts of 1938 follows: Anything under $10-000 exempt; $10,000 to $25,000—1 per cent; $25,000 to $50,000—2 per cent; $50,000 to $100,000—3 per cent; $100,000 to $250,000—4 per cent; over $250,000—5 per cent.The latter figure would apply entirely to the Wisconsin Telephone company, the author said.The tax on toll business would be: Up to $10,000 exempt; $10,000 to $15,000—1 per cent; $15,000 to $20,000—
2 per cent; $20,000 to $25,000—3 per cent; over $25,000—4 per cent.The school aid bill is a re-enactment of laws in effect during previous years.Special taxes against telephone companies also were levied in 1936 and 1937 for relief purposes.

Ickes Charges U.S. Publishers Have 'Shackled' Press

Gannett, Denied Time to Finish Reply, Charges 'Unfairness'

New York—(AP)—In a sharp debate, Secretary Ickes asserted last night the American press had been put in "shackles" by the publishers themselves and private financial interests, while Frank Gannett contended no other form of control of the press save "governmental domination or censorship" need be feared.

They discussed the general subject whether the press was free in "America's Town Meeting of the Air," a national radio forum.

Gannett, owner of 19 newspapers and three radio stations, who spoke last, was not able to finish his prepared address and protested as "unfair" the limitation placed upon him.

Mack in Key Job As Head of Senate Roads Committee

Outagamie Legislator Will Be Center of Much Important Legislation

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—(AP)—Senators' veteran political leader, Senator Mike Mack, who has sat quietly through two Progressive-controlled legislative sessions, this week assumed a position of leadership and responsibility in a legislature controlled by friends of his own political faith, Republicans.

Indicative of the position to which Mack has arisen in his fifth legislative term is his selection by the Republican majority in the senate this week for the chairmanship of the influential and work-laden committee on highways.

Two considerations resulted in his election to that post, his long service on the Outagamie county board, of which he has been chairman for many years, and his eight years of service in the state senate, where he has taken a deep interest in highway affairs and legislation.

As senate highways chairman, Mack will be in a strategic position during the two year term of power of the Republican party.

One of his first duties will be to schedule for hearing a bill introduced today by Senator Francis A. Yindra of Manitowoc (Manitowoc, Kewaunee and Door counties) to segregate state highway departments funds from the state treasury, and compelling the state highway commission to repay to the state general fund some $23,000,000 which it is alleged the commission borrowed from highway receipts over a period of years to balance its budget.

Another probable bill will be for the legal diversion of great chunks of state highway money for general state purposes to replenish the state treasury during the ensuing biennium. At the same time the Mack committee will receive proposals from the counties for a greater appropriation for county highways, from the cities for more generous allocations of state aid for local roads and streets, and from the Heil administration itself a proposal to give counties more control in highway administration.

Most interesting politically will be Yindra's bill, for which the Manitowoc county legislator fought hard, but vainly, while he was in the assembly two years ago. All parties have accused each other at some time or other of illegally diverting highway revenue to cover up state treasury deficits. Republican accusations of the Heil administration of that practice in their victorious fall campaign.

Assisting him in his big job Senator Mack will have two other leaders in county government, Senator Ernest Sauld of Pembine, who has been a member of the Marinette county board for many years, and Jess Miller of Hartford.

County to Get $11,278 In Common School Aid

Outagamie county will receive common school aid of $11,278.30, based on the census of school children which shows 20,506 of school age in the county, according to information received by Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, county treasurer, from John Callahan, state superintendent of schools. A check for the amount will be sent the county next month. Fifty-five cents is paid for each person of school age in the county.

City Maps Showing 18 Wards are Available

Maps showing Appleton's streets and house numbers and the ward lines under the new 18-ward plan will be available Saturday at the office of Carl J. Becher, city clerk. The maps will be given free of charge to anyone who requests them at city hall.

Seymour Post Office Has Biggest Year in History

Seymour—The Seymour post office had the biggest year, in 1938, since it was established. For the first time revenue of the local office derived from the sale of postage stamps and so forth, exceeded $10,000. The receipts totaled $10,275.33. The money order business of the year amounted to $53,048.44, making a total of $73,066.67 for the year. This was an increase of $3,253.61 over the previous year.

The Kiwanis club of Seymour sponsoring the annual president's birthday ball. A definite date is to be announced later.

E. T. Hawkins, newly elected lieutenant governor for the Northwestern Wisconsin district, Elbridge Boyden, newly elected club president, and Martin Backlund, past club president, returned from the mid-winter conference of Kiwanis held at Schroeder hotel in Milwaukee on Monday and Tuesday. A detailed report was given by these members to the club at the last meeting.

Among the discussions and plans for the coming season, the boys' and girls' work seemed the most important.

Stockholders of the First National bank met at the "Boater" club for the annual meeting. When the annual meeting was held, the dues were given. J. H. Newman, St. Vincent hospital, Green Bay, Appleton attorney, was the speaker.

SENATE COMMITTEE APPROVES FRANKFURTER

Senator Matthew Neely (left) (D., W. Va.), here shakes hands with Prof. Felix Frankfurter (right) in Washington, after the Senate judiciary sub-committee of which Neely was chairman approved Frankfurter's nomination as a Supreme Court justice. Senator Henry Ashurst (center) (D., Ariz.), chairman of the full judiciary committee yet to vote on Frankfurter, looks on. Note Frankfurter's comparatively small stature.

Sees Enactment Of Price Fixing Law for Farmers

Eighteen Senators Join in Introduction of Long Advocated Bill

Washington—(AP)—Senator Frazier (R-N.D.) said today there was a good chance of enacting a program for government fixing of farm prices as a substitute for the present crop control law.

Ignoring party lines, 18 senators joined yesterday in introducing the "cost of production" legislation which some farm leaders have advocated for a long time.

Senator Bankhead (D-Ala.), staunch advocate of crop and marketing control features imbedded in the present farm program, questioned ability of the group to muster enough votes.

"The principle of the government fixing any commodity price is wrong. When you start on one thing there is no end. If you fix the prices on things the farmer sells, then you probably will have to fix the prices of things he buys."

Frazier said the new bill would continue the present soil conservation program, under which $500,000,000 in annual benefit payments is authorized. It also would include crop insurance, surplus relief disposal, and some other features of the present act.

Under the new bill, he said, a farmer could plant, produce and market all he wanted.

"He would receive the fixed price for his share of the domestic market," he explained. "All the surplus would be turned over to the government for export or warehouse reserves. Any income from this would go back to the farmer."

ENDORSED BY BADGERS

Washington—(AP)—A cost-of-production farm bill, embodying establishment of minimum prices, had the endorsement today of two Wisconsin legislators.

Senator Frazier (R-N. D.) introduced the bill in the senate, and sponsors included Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.). In the house the measure was presented by eight representatives including B. J. Gehrmann, Mellen (Wis.) Progressive.

Rep. Lemke (R-N. D.) described the bill as "a non-partisan answer to Secretary Wallace's challenge for a farm program." It has backing from farm state legislators of both major parties and some administration Democrats.

The bill retains certain AAA features but discards the principle of limited production.

Curtain Call Groups Give Parts of Plays

Three scenes from contemporary plays were presented by members of Curtain Call, dramatic group of Appleton High school, at the regular meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Karl Hauch and Audrey Lemmer offered a scene from "Ah, Wilderness," while a cutting from "Two Crooks and a Lady" was given by Margaret Lally and Richard Fox. Jack Lally and Jean Voss acted out a scene from "Another Language."

The club voted on students recommended for membership by Miss Kathryn Fralish, adviser to the production group, and Jack Burroughs, coach for the lighting group. Since they have served satisfactory apprenticeships, three students will now be considered active members of Curtain Call.

COMMITTEE MEETING

The finance committee of the common council will meet this afternoon in city hall to review bills contracted since the last council meeting. The committee will prepare its report for Wednesday's council session.

Actress Quizzed In Buckner Case

Loretta Young Says She Thinks Broker Is 'A Lovely Boy'

Hollywood—(AP)—Government investigators, here to find out if Hollywood motion picture celebrities invested in Philippine railroad bonds offered by William P. Buckner, Jr., New York promoter, learned today that wide-eyed Loretta Young thinks the broker is "a lovely boy."

"Certainly I know him; of course I like him," Miss Young said as she appeared at the United States district attorney's office for questioning by Assistant United States Attorney John C. Walsh of New York and Louis F. Maged, securities exchange commission investigator.

But their friendship, she declared, was "purely social." As for business dealings:

"Mr. Buckner never asked me to buy any of these Philippine railroad bonds so naturally I did not invest."

Buckner is accused, with William Gillespie, of mail fraud.

Miss Young, whose name has been mentioned romantically with that of Buckner, answered a direct question as to whether marriage was planned with:

"I'm not engaged to him. He's just a friend and a fine gentleman. Am I going to marry him? I won't answer that. It's a question for him to answer."

Adjourn Hearing Into Investment Company Methods

Report on Fidelity Investment Association Will Be Made Soon

Madison—(AP)—After a private discussion with attorneys on an audit of Fidelity Investment association finances, Peter A. Cleary, chairman of the state banking commission, announced late yesterday that hearings into business and sales methods of the firm were adjourned indefinitely.

Clearly indicated no more public hearings, which began here after the federal securities and exchange commission filed a complaint in the Detroit federal court, would be held by the state commission.

He said the commission expected to complete a report on its investigation within two weeks. Leo Vaudreuil, commission counsel, has attempted to substantiate the claim that salesmen of the firm, which has headquarters at Wheeling, W. Va., omitted material facts regarding cash surrender values and withdrawal privileges while negotiating sales of fidelity contracts.

Attorney Robert M. Rieser, representing the company, seeking to refute the commission's contention, brought forward witnesses who testified they fully understood provisions of contracts they purchased.

Maintains Fund

Since the company maintains a fund, under state supervision, for protection of contract holders, the auditors' report was a vital part of the inquiry. Clearly said a public hearing at this time might have been unjust to the company and its customers because of possible misinterpretation of facts disclosed.

He said all pertinent facts disclosed in the audit would be presented in the commission's final report. Clearly indicated the commission wants to arrive at a decision as soon as possible so that it may act on applications of fidelity salesmen for renewal of licenses to transact business in Wisconsin.

Before going into private session yesterday, the commission called Robert L. Hesse, Madison insurance agent, for testimony on a report that representatives of the State Life Insurance association, of which Hesse now is president, had received unfair treatment when making inquiries about a year ago regarding the life insurance aspects of the Fidelity association.

Hesse testified he knew of no individual complaint against the commission, and that the insurance men referred to had received the "finest and most courteous treatment."

Confesses Slaying Imbecile Son; Says He's 'Better Off'

13 TODAY

People who are superstitious are said to be nervous today, Friday 13, for it's supposed to be a highly unlucky series of 24 hours. But Charlotte Ann Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krueger, Hortonville, has been looking forward to it. The young lady is 13 years old today. She was born Friday, Jan. 13, 1926.

Sidestep Black Cats And Ladders; Today Is Friday, Jan. 13

Today is the day when superstitious people are supposed to feel double trouble approaching as black cats cross their paths or they walk unwittingly under ladders.

For it is on this day that Friday, an unlucky day, meets 13, an unlucky number.

Snow fell softly in the city and life moved along at a self-contained pace despite the fearful date that stared at people from kitchen calendars. If Friday, Jan. 13, was frightening Appleton people, they were well able to keep from showing it.

Friday and the 13th of the month don't get together very often, but when they do there is usually a lot of talk and very little worrying. Friday came to be regarded as an unlucky day because of its association with the Crucifixion.

New York—(AP)—The sobs of a 17-year-old imbecile boy, "like some tormented soul," were stilled today as police guarded the father, who they said, calmly admitted administering chloroform to his son because "he's better off dead."

Years of indecision were ended, Louis Greenfield, 42, a prosperous milliner, told Detective Captain F. J. McVeigh, as the boy, Jerome, inhaled the lethal fumes from saturated handkerchiefs yesterday.

Two months ago, the father told McVeigh, he purchased the chloroform and hid it in a coat pocket.

Samuel Foley, Bronx county district attorney, said Greenfield told him the boy, with the mental age of a two-year-old, had frequent spells, burying his hands in his face and sobbing "like some tormented soul," then collapsing.

Yesterday the boy suffered another spell.

"I got two of my handkerchiefs and saturated them with chloroform," Greenfield was quoted by McVeigh. "Then I held them to his nose for about 15 minutes. He didn't put up any struggle. He just went to sleep."

"I'd been thinking about it for many years. . . . We loved him so much. . . . Many doctors told us he was incurable. It was the benevolent thing to do."

Police inhalator squadmen, who attempted to revive the boy, said the father watched them, then said, "don't attempt to revive him. He's better off dead."

Greenfield was charged with homicide.

Greenfield's wife, who had been sent by her husband early in the day to his millinery concern, said simply, "I felt that was why he sent me away."

Falk Silent on Reports Of New Post at Madison

Stevens Point—(AP)—Comment was withheld last night by Philip H. Falk, president of Central State Teachers college here, concerning reports published in Madison that he would become superintendent of Madison schools Feb. 4, succeeding R. W. Bardwell.

Falk was acting superintendent at Madison a year ago and came here last fall from Waukesha, Wis., where he was superintendent. Bardwell went to Madison 11 years ago from Rock Island, Ill., and reportedly has resigned to take a publishing house position.

City's Agreement With Canal Firm To be Explained

Officials Expect Large Attendance at Mass Meeting Tonight

Kaukauna—A large attendance is anticipated tonight at the mass meeting in the council chambers to explain the agreement entered into with the Green Bay and Mississippi Canal company at a special meeting last Friday. Representatives of the Canal company, the utilities commission, the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company and H. F. Weckwerth, electrical department superintendent, will be present.

The Canal company will be represented by William Van Nieuwen and Edward Dempsey, company lawyers. Thilmany's will be represented by Myron T. Ray and Charles Seaborn. If the council chambers can't hold the crowd the civic auditorium will be used.

The discussion will revolve around the contract whereby the city transfers to the Canal company its right to 32 per cent of the Fox river above the government dam in return for 100 per cent of the flow after it passes through the Badger plant, owned by the Canal company. This 100 per cent flow will be diverted for use in the city's electric plant to be built at the former Paten Paper company site.

At Friday's meeting City Attorney Harry F. McAndrews read a detailed statement advising the council not to enter into the contract. Weckwerth has prepared a statement which he will read in reply to McAndrews' arguments.

McAndrews brought the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company into the discussion when he implied that the company may not renew its present contract with the city when it expires. The Thilmany contract expires Jan. 1, 1948.

"In consideration of advances of $30,000 from the city and $30,000 from the Canal company, about a year ago to permit Thilmany's to increase its boiler capacity to an extent sufficient for its own needs) the Thilmany company entered into a contract to the effect that it would take all of its power requirements, less its water wheel development, from the city for a period of ten years, and at those times when the city was not able to furnish its full requirements from electricity generated by the Canal company's plants, the Thilmany company would reduce its demand on the city for certain definite amounts and within thirty minutes after being notified. It was the basic thought in entering into this agreement that the city could retain the Thilmany company as a customer, and that when the Canal company plants could not furnish enough power, Thilmany would start its own generating equipment, and thereby the city would not have to purchase from other utilities."

Hopkins Handled Himself Well In Appearance Before Senators

Washington—Let New Dealers profit by the example of Harry Hopkins, their hero and the ablest of them all. Considering the difficult position in which he was placed, appearing before the largely hostile senate commerce committee which was inquiring into his qualifications to be secretary of commerce, Hopkins handled himself skillfully and effectively. Especially considering the embarrassing position he was in with regard to politics and WPA.

On that, Hopkins executed a strategic retreat to much stronger ground. He said—and he has good reason to mean it—that if he had it to do over again, he would not have made political speeches while head of WPA. He also said he probably should have fired WPA people caught mixing into politics in Kentucky and other states. That statement may have been a disappointment to some of his critics on the committee who were prepared to hang Hopkins over a hickory limb at that point. When they made a grab for him, he wasn't there.

Although it was a neat escape, Hopkins thereby acknowledged the serious mistake which has marred an otherwise notable record of handling some $9,000,000,000 and distributing it among some 3,000,000 persons through an administrative organization numbering 35,000 and covering every county in the country.

Hopkins has nothing to fear from those critics who object to his sympathy with the unemployed and his aggressive efforts to give them work and food, any more than Attorney General Frank Murphy has from the people who denounce him because he wouldn't shoot the sidown strikers out of the Detroit automobile plants.

When industry cannot employ people the government must take care of them, balanced budget or no balanced budget. Hopkins is not to be justly criticized if he thinks of these luckless people as human beings and not as statistics in the budget.

Where Hopkins was vulnerable was in not being tougher on politicians who wanted to use him and WPA and in permitting his enthusiasm for the New Deal to sweep him into political speech making.

Politicians Like to Have Relief on Their Side
Relief is by its very nature easily prostituted to political use. Nearly every politician wants to use relief on his side. As the senate showed last summer when at the urgent request of Senator Barkley, then a candidate for reelection, the Hatch amendment to prohibit politics in relief was voted down.

Real concern exists over this danger of political issue or relief. Hopkins was so aggressive in his desire to help the administration that he could not see the mistrust with which the country viewed his own political utterances. He could not see that it was the worst thing he could do for relief itself. And when Thomas L. Stokes exposed abuses of relief in the Kentucky primary, disclosures which the Sheppard committee have verified, Hopkins made an attempt to deny them.

Facing the senate committee, Hopkins saw that he was on untenable ground and he got off as fast as he could. It would have been infinitely better for the administration if he had done so during the political campaign.

Self-Imposed Censorship Would Prevent Trouble
The other stuff played at Hopkins during the senate hearing was chicken-feed, such as the rumor of something he was alleged to have said in a moment of relaxation at

Insurance Company Makes 3 Changes in Policy Provisions

Forest Junction—Three enactments affecting its policy holders evolved from the annual meeting of the Equity Town Mutual Insurance company held at the Brillion town hall here Thursday. One of them bars payment of losses which originate from the use of electric fences. Another makes acceptable risk any dwelling without lightning rods outside of the limits of a village or city, provided the area has available fire protection. The third enactment provides for an inspection of premises for fire hazards by the company's agent in writing new or renewed policies. An inspection sheet will be filed in carrying out this enactment.

By-laws of the company had previously accepted only unrodded dwelling houses located within the corporate limits of any village or city. Approximately 55 policy holders attended the meeting, which also reelected H. L. Bastian and Albert Sievert to the board of directors for three years. Other directors of the company are William Vollmer, president, H. C. Ullrich, secretary-treasurer, John Zimmermann and John Seybold. Forty-eight losses, aggregating $26,821.77, were paid by the company in 1938, according to the (twenty-seventh) annual report. There were 1,836 policies in force in Calumet and adjacent counties at the close of the calendar year, which was 24 more than a year before. Total risk on the 1,836 policies is $11,141,716.

SENATOR CLARK AND HIS SIRE

Senator Clark of Missouri has often been spoken of as Presidential timber in 1940. Mr. Clark, despite his fighting opposition to certain World War measures, had no difficulty in winning handsomely in Missouri this year.

But when Senator Clark is put before a Democratic National Convention as a possible presidential nominee no one will be able to blot out the Convention of 1912 when his father, although receiving the majority of the votes, was done out of the nomination because of the two-thirds rule, until finally Woodrow Wilson emerged with the plum.

Since Wilson and Clark were widely opposite characters, it behooves some imaginative historian to write America's story since 1912 upon the assumption that Mr. Clark became president instead of Mr. Wilson. We could start with the postulate that America would never have participated in the World War. That is an almost unavoidable conclusion. But starting with that simple statement, the writer of the world's history from thence forward would be surrounded with the greatest mass of detail that ever brought smiles to a happy author's face.

How could he, however, avoid the conclusion that with America out of the fray Germany would never have been brought to revolution? A rather decent peace would in fact have been patched up. And this becomes a suitable conclusion because neither side could have won and at long last each would have realized that fact just before dropping from exhaustion.

With such a peace there would have been no Polish Corridor, no Memel, no Saar, no Sudetens and Austria-Hungary would not have been torn to bits to satisfy spleens that had carried the poison of hatred for centuries.

In the event of such a peace neither Hitler nor Mussolini would have been known to the world. Herr Adolf would now be mumbling around beer halls in little Bavarian towns trying to earn a few marks with his atrocious paintings while children touched their foreheads as he passed in consideration of which he turned and orated to them speaking of grandiose and spectacular things much to their amusement. And Mussolini would still be shouting curses upon all kings, rulers and potentates while he spoke before motley throngs of ragged people and made their eyes blaze with the beautiful picture originated by Mr. Marx and called Socialism.

Quite likely the Kaiser or some of his numerous progeny would be ruling and threatening as of old. But his threats would have become softened with loose teeth and the awful experience of a World War that ended in a stalemate.

These are only some of the reasons why the name of Senator Clark should always be interesting to Americans. Perhaps a sort of national justice will be developed by 1940 in which the Democratic party will try to right the injustice of 1912 by nominating the son of the man who was then entitled to its nomination.

A CHRISTMAS PARTY UNDER SANTA CLAUS MARX

Russia was not barren of Christmas festivities by any means but they were held with due regard to the brotherhood of man as revealed by Soviet practices. A nice, big batch of erstwhile patriots and followers in the cause of humanity were shot, each behind the ear, which makes for speed and economy.

The Russian press, printed under a constitution that specifies freedom of speech and press—if you are silly enough to take it literally—howls upon the heels of these departing brothers of the great and glorious cause of liberty and fraternity with much the same staccato yelps as they may receive by way of welcome from Gorbachev on the other side.

The charge against the Russians on the other side of freedom was that they had been instrumental in forcing confessions from innocent people. And the Christmas batch of the dispatched themselves confessed to forcing confessions from others upon which the others had been theretofore duly punished. As surely as the Aztecs could foresee future events by the condition of cloud rings around the moon the world should be able to realize that another epidemic of confessions is due in the land of the Moscovites. And these fellows continue to confess without any evangelist like the late Billy Sunday staging a crusading revival either. They are just overcome by the desire to out with it. Their lips open and words pour forth. Then their lips close, and close forever.

When these spurred rulers are finally overthrown, as they are bound to be, we can be pretty sure of the first rule adopted under the new order if it follows the people's wishes. That rule will be: No confession will ever be considered worth a kopeck.

LOVE-POTIONS IN COLORADO

In the Editor's mail yesterday came a letter from Dr. George A. Glenn written on the imposing stationery of the Senate Chamber of the State of Colorado which also contained the legend that the mentioned medico occupies the position of state senator from the first senatorial district.

Enclosed with this letter was a delightful review, a sort of smiling parade, of the great lovers of history including King Solomon, Julius Caesar, Mark Anthony, Casanova, Lord Byron, Beau Brummel, and others who ruled and palpitated the feminine hearts of their day.

But the article was much more practical than its alluring references to the past. The doctor describes it as relating to "rejuvenating love-potions consumed by natives in the jungles of South America" with a positive recommendation concerning their remarkable potency. Perhaps the doctor is the reincarnation of some of those other characters in history who walked along with the great lovers, although a little apart, and sold them love potions. They posed as wizards. Possibly they were.

At first it occurred to us that there was something mistaken about the doctor's stationery. Colorado and California are so easily confused. Had the doctor claimed to represent some district in that long state that borders the Pacific, balmy in more than one way, the surprise would certainly not have been as great unless it were because he hadn't already been elected governor.

But Colorado? It hardly seems appropriate for that rugged state to be juggling with love stimulants, perhaps "the film that lies in a lizard's eyes, or a pinch of pulverized toad." Or is this gentleman the Kansas goat gland physician who has moved to fresher fields?

The ambitious doctor writes: "I herewith request that you will acknowledge this as my discovery." Well, all right, if it will make the doctor happier we write our acknowledgment fully and completely. And with it we acknowledge that Doc Cook discovered the North Pole.

When the next session of the Colorado legislature has completed its labors we shall not forget to secure a copy of its laws. With Dr. Glenn and his love-potions in the legislature interesting reading should be provided.

And now let all lift their beakers high and quaff a toast to Colorado's Glenn, for the sake of his noble profession, an extra gurgle for Old Doc Townsend.

ANOTHER P. O. DEFICIT

The Post Office Department lost nearly 44 million dollars during 1938 according to report of the Postmaster General just delivered to the President.

Mr. Farley observed that the department would have made between four and five millions profit were it not for the expense of its free services.

He specified that it cost the people of this country over 48 millions to carry mail free for members of congress, government departments and blind persons, and to provide subsidies for the air mail.

The public expects to pay for carrying the necessary or business mail of congressmen and other departments of the federal government. To make those departments pay would be merely a duplication of bookkeeping because they would have to be provided with the money for the purpose.

But to prevent the 531 members of congress from abusing their franking privileges is quite another thing and should be accomplished by specific amendment to the law.

During the last campaign two senators residing elsewhere flooded Wisconsin with literature in favor of Senator Duffy. Mr. Duffy pled he did not intend to give them their interested generosity. If they actually covered the mailing lists of the state, as charged by opponents, they presented Senator Duffy with about $50,000 worth of campaign expenses, all paid for by the people of this country in making good the deficit of the Post Office Department.

The incumbent of an office has a certain advantage in a race for reelection because he is generally well known. To add to this another $50,000 for a state office, and at the expense of the people, is a bit heavy.

Opinions of Others

REASONABLE DEMAND
One of the chief recommendations made by the Dies committee, which submitted its report to congress yesterday, is that the national labor relations board be investigated at least to the point of discovering whether or not its views coincide with those of David J. Saposs, its chief economist.

The recommendation is a reasonable one. The purpose of the labor board, as set forth in the law creating it, is to serve the capitalist system by promoting industrial peace. But the Dies committee brought forth evidence which indicated that Mr. Saposs, at one time in his career at least, belonged to an organization which was designed to work toward "the complete abolition of planless, profit-seeking capitalism."

The chairman of the board, J. Warren Madden, defended his economist against earlier charges that his views were anti-capitalist, but

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Loneliness is the soul's bitterest hemlock.

It was Holiday week. We sat, the Lovely Lady and I, leisurely finishing our dinner at a night club, waiting for the show to begin. We are both bugs over vaudeville.

The customers were still straggling in. Many of them stopped to chat with friends already seated. There are seven million New Yorkers, but the crowds at First Nights, whether they be at theatres or night clubs, are pretty much the same people, night after night.

Tommy Farr came in—Tommy Farr, the Welsh fighter whose fourteen round courage against Nova less than a fortnight before had seemed to me one of the most splendid things I have ever seen in a ring. He chatted with a dozen friends before reaching his table next to ours.

Eleanor Holm, the swimmer, and Billy Rose, currently the busiest showman in town, conversed across a table a few feet farther away.

All around was the music of dishes as diners hurried to end their meal before the start of the show. Beautiful women, satisfying food, wine, music and soft lights set a scene of contentment.

We, the Lovely Lady and I, were part and parcel of that contentment. We had dined well. Her sinus had subsided. Santa Claus had been good. The New Year boded well.

There was no shadow on that moment of happiness. Then the Flower Girl came by.

She said hello. Let's call her Evelyn. We have known her, as one gets to know employees of public places if he goes to them often for several months. She placed her tray of flowers on the table and wished us both a Happy New Year.

It was my fault for bringing it up. I asked her if she had had a merry Christmas.

"Christmas!" she replied, bitterly. "How could I have a merry Christmas?"

"I know it isn't like being home," I blurted hastily. "But New York is gay during the holidays, and you are young and pretty. You must have had fun."

She looked at us with tortured eyes.

"On Christmas," she said slowly, "I got drunk."

Evelyn's home is in Memphis, Tennessee. She is as friendly and as sweet as the blooms she sells. It was hard to picture her—just a kid, really, at 19—spending Christmas with a bottle.

I said: "Evelyn, I've got a good notion to spank you."

"I deserve it, I guess," was her answer. She leaned closer. "There wasn't anything else I could do. Honest, I was so lonesome. Gay New York! Gay, yes, for 364 days a year. But Christmas—everybody ought to be home on Christmas. It seemed as though I just couldn't live the day through."

"I'll go home in a few weeks—home to Nashville," said my dinner companion.

"Tell me when," cried the flower girl, "and I'll go with you. Nashville, Memphis, Knoxville—any part of Tennessee. I love it."

She picked up her tray and stood ready to leave.

"I'll drop back before you go—may I?" she said. "It makes me feel better, talking with someone from down there."

Smiling now, she moved away.

I made a note in my book: "Evelyn—flower girl—lonesome Christmas."

It occurred to me that some day I might write a little squib about it.

Holidays leave me cold. They always have. I hate July Fourth because the firecrackers startle me and scare the wits out of the dog. Columbus Day is a bally nuisance because the banks are closed, and it seems like that is the only day I want to go to the bank. Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays irk me for the same reason. Both gentlemen were great, and I treasure their contributions to America. Having holidays for them, though, is annoying.

My resentment is born of a life served on newspapers. Newspapermen didn't get the day off in my time. It burned me up to be working while other citizens were going on picnics.

My wife is different. She lives for holidays. She will celebrate everything from Christmas to the anniversary of Rusty's first yelp. It takes all kind of people to make a family.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

TEACH ME TO BE LIKE YOU

Teach me to be like you, without
One thought of pettiness, and no
Dark handicap of fear and doubt
To make my promise dull and slow.

Your nature is unselfish.
You have no time for bitterness.
But lend a helping hand to all
Who come to you in their distress.

I would be generous and kind Telling the broad unselfish view.
With a glad heart and sunny mind,
If I could learn to be like you.

so far as the record shows there has been no reply from the board to the statement that Mr. Saposs did, in fact, support an organization committed to the abolition of capitalism. Since belief in such a program would clearly unfit him to serve as economist to a body created to make the path of capitalism easier, it is clearly important, for the sake of the labor board and in the general public interest, that the matter be set straight.—Baltimore Sun.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Congress was barely in its seat this session when it was startled by one of the most amazing slips of years—the accidental, premature publication of the Navy's plan for extending this fortified zone right up to the Japanese door step.

For a foreign spy to have gathered this advance information on what the Navy hopes to do in the Pacific and around the Canal Zone would have assured him at least a stiff raise in pay.

Now the whole thing can be had for perhaps a dime—the price isn't set yet—by the government printing office.

The report told of the Navy's hopes for building 25 new bases for planes, submarines, destroyers and mines over a zone that encompassed half the Pacific ocean and all of the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico.

It told of the number of airplanes and men advisable for each station and listed the projects according to the urgency of their need. Outstanding on the list was fortification of the island of Guam. This little island is 1,200 miles from Japan and in fact right in the heart of several islands mandated to Japan after the World War.

Deep, Dark Secret
Ordinarily such projects are kept hidden in secret files and only communicated even to Congress on demand.

This report was compiled especially for Congress as requested in the billion dollar naval bill of last session.

During the summer a thorough study of need was made, submitted by Admiral Hepburn, chairman of the board, to Secretary Swanson of the Navy, and by him relayed to the President.

From him it came to the desk of Speaker Bankhead about 10 days before the session opened. There it lay awaiting convening of Congress, when the House Naval Affairs Committee was to study it.

It was marked "confidential" with a red naval seal. But the letter of transmittal accompanying the report was tightly affixed to the cover page, completely hiding the "confidential" seal. A few reporters knew of the existence of the report, and an Associated Press reporter, Reg Ingraham, kept it forever hidden.

The second day of Congress he checked on it and learned that it had been routinely transmitted to the bill clerk to be made public at once. The "confidential" seal had remained hidden.

Three-Hour Beat
Once upon the bill clerk's possession it was public property open to newspapermen. The seal was not discovered until hours later, although likely it would have been ignored on a document in the bill room in the belief the thing had been officially waived.

Ingraham spent nearly an hour digging out the detailed report and scored a three-hour beat on the story, a neat trick in this city.

In time the Navy Department tried to withdraw the report, but the stories already were widely printed. Japanese and German correspondents were eager students of the thing.

The Navy Department ultimately concluded that nothing could be done about it, and that no great harm had been done anyway, and perhaps some good. It at least showed foreign powers that the U. S. had more acres to play.

It could not have been kept secret indefinitely, since Congress would have had to know about it before the money could be made available.

This is a non-partisan movement, having for its purpose "to draw attention to the rights, privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship and to lead Americans to recommit and re-dedicate themselves to the maintenance of their free institutions." Surely this is an object that will appeal to all.

GAMBLERS' CHANCES
Editor Post-Crescent: After reading the article published in your paper January 6 concerning the evils of gambling, I wish the Outagamie County Democratic Club every success in curbing these evils.

I also wish to bring out the fact that baseball pools have been virtually ignored in the public press.

These pools are constantly becoming more popular for two reasons. First they are tied up with America's principal sport. Second, they have the same appeal as the Irish sweepstakes, the chance of winning a relatively big stake on a small investment.

If the customer could figure out the "percentage" in these pools, he'd most likely leave them alone. Why, a fifth grade school girl can, within a short while, learn to figure how many chances are in a baseball pool of, say, twenty-four teams in three-team combinations.

Here's where the secret lies—First, write down the number of teams in the pool. Take 24 for example.

Begin at this number and count backwards as many times as there are teams on each ticket. (In three-team combinations you write down 24, 32, 22) Multiply these numbers (24x32x22) equals 12,144.

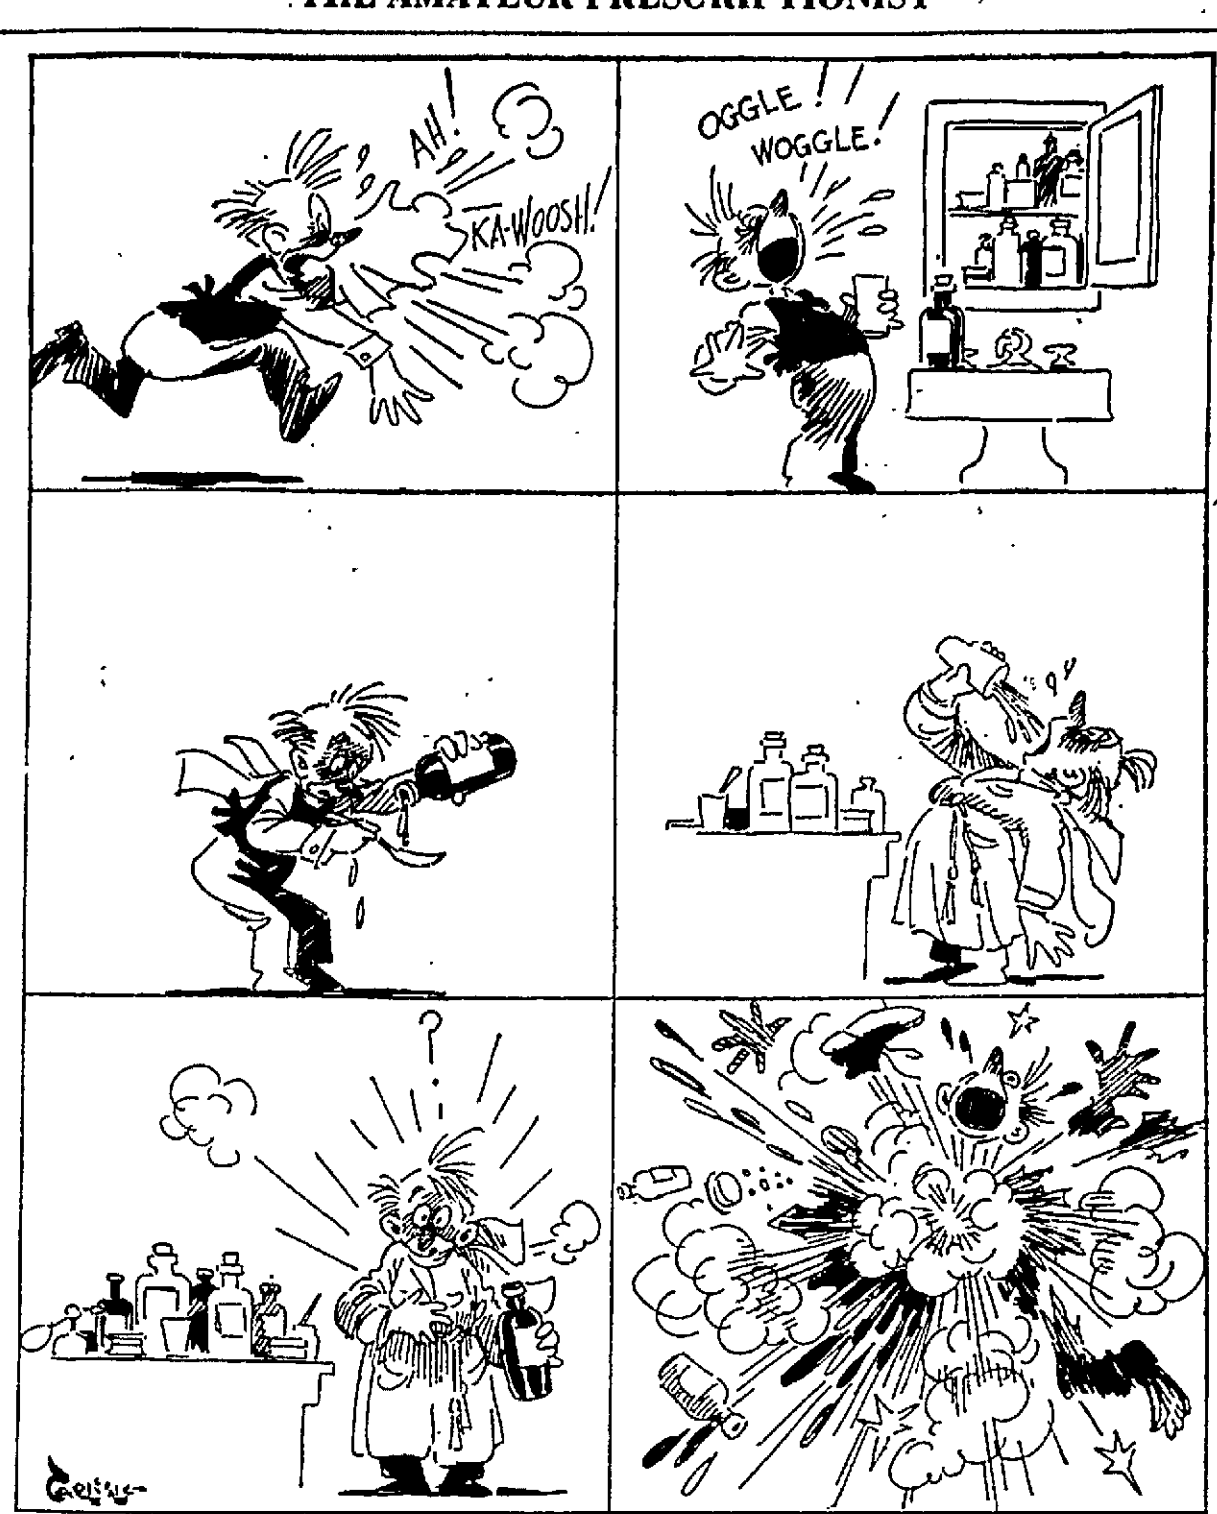

Forget this number for a moment and write down the number of teams on each ticket—3. Count backwards again till you have run out of figures (3, 2, 1).

Now, multiply these numbers (3x2x1) equals 6.

Divide the first product by the second (12,144 by 6) and you have the answer—2,024. That's all there's to it.

It is an ironical fact that the "percentage" against dime and quarter gamblers—people who need

THE AMATEUR PRESCRIPTIONIST

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

LUMP IN THE BREAST

One foolish notion about lumps in the breast is that they may be massaged away or caused to disappear by rubbing in various medicaments. While the majority of such lumps are not of serious nature, occasionally they are the beginning of dangerous growths. If the lump happens to be malignant, cancerous, then rubbing or squeezing may break down the delicate wall that nature is trying to build up around the primary cancer cells to prevent spreading of the growth. Massage forces some of the cells into the lymphatic or drainage channels and through these channels they spread to other parts of the body. The competent physician is particularly careful in examining such lumps to avoid this very possibility.

Another popular notion which is dangerous is that such a lump in the breast is not cancer unless it is painful. The truth is rather the contrary. That is, if a lump is painful at the beginning, the chances are it is benign in character and will require no treatment. But a lump which is discovered accidentally and is not painful is more likely to prove the beginning of cancer. Too often doctors hear this tragic exclamation: "Why, Doctor, I didn't think it could be serious, because it has never given me the slightest pain."

A lump in the breast which is freely movable is less likely to be cancerous than one which seems fixed or attached to skin, gland or rib.

There are misguided folk who elect to put off examination of such lumps by the physician, because they fear he might advise an operation. The truth is that the majority of such lumps do not require treatment of any kind, but if it happens that the lump is malignant, that is of cancerous nature, then the sooner it is surgically removed the better the chance of saving life, and this operation by a qualified surgeon is one of the safest known to modern surgery.

In seeking medical advice is therefore the most dangerous feature of such cases.

In any such case, surely it is better to give yourself the benefit of the doubt by having the assurance of your physician about the lump. We don't know whether worry is itself a predisposing factor of cancer, but it may well be. To worry your compensation for self-sacrifice and hard work. In marriage you have every right to expect a very happy home life.

If a man and January 14 is your natal day, you perhaps have high standards to live up to, and in all likelihood will maintain them. When left to your own devices you ought to do much better than if you are forced to carry out other people's ideas. As a real estate, insurance, or stock broker, author, educator, clergyman, actor, office or factory manager you have an excellent chance to win the public's regard.

"CAPRICORN"
If January 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m.; and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.; from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m.; and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Worry will handicap anyone foolish enough to shoulder it this day. Fretting or grieving accomplishes no good, and on this day will be the result of people indulging in or harboring erroneous thoughts. Apparent defeat can be turned into victory with very little effort, so you must keep nothing discouraging you. To keep pace with the world you have to be awake and waste no time in feeling sorry for yourself. If you are alert there will be no reason for your being otherwise than cheerful. Married and engaged couples and those who are in love, may find that enthusiasm will help make the day seem bright and enjoyable.

If a woman and January 14 is your birthday, you will be better off pulling your own chestnuts out of the fire than waiting for someone else to do it for you. Your friends are apt to take a very keen interest in your future, so do not recent suggestions made in a friendly spirit. You are not likely to forget to show your appreciation for services rendered, with the result that many people should be eager to serve you. Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

Popular Recipes

Women are forever looking for new ways to earn cookery laurels and complimentary halos for themselves. They can keep a person literally on one's toes to provide them with new ideas and suggestions and when one or more of these ideas "click" with numerous housewives, it knows it from the request received for their reputation.

It gives me great pleasure to be able to repeat some of these requested recipes. Out of this list, Miss Schneider is difficult to choose only a few which have been most popular but here they are.

Frozen Pineapple Salad is one of the salads especially liked by the readers of this column. Almond Cream Angel Food, of melt-in-the-mouth goodness is one of the popular desserts. It is high and fluffy, exceptionally tender, with a rich almond cream filling. A satiny white icing gives an exquisite finish. Do try it soon. It's a dessert complete in itself for dinners or parties.

FROZEN PINEAPPLE SALAD
1 pk. lemon 1 can crushed gelatine 1 can pineapple
2 pkcs. cream 1 small can pineapple
1 cup celery, cut 2-3 cups nuts, finely chopped
1 pint whipping cream of salt cream

Heat the pineapple juice, and pour over jello. Stir until dissolved and let stand until it begins to set. Add the pineapple. Mix the mixture with the cream cheese, and add celery, salt and finely chopped nuts. Beat egg whites with flat whip. Add cream of tartar. Continue beating until a point of the whip is pulled over. Gradually beat in 1 cup of the sugar. Fold in the cream. Fold in the flour which has been sifted three times with the remaining 1 cup sugar. Bake 1 hour in a slow moderate oven 325 degrees F. Use a 10-inch tube center pan. Invert pan until cake is entirely cold. Split angel food to make two layers. Place Almond Cream Filling between the layers, and cover with white icing.

ALMOND CREAM FILLING
4 tablespoons 1 cup rich milk
1 tbs. corn- 1 tsp. salt
1 tbs. starch 1 tsp. vanilla
2 egg yolks
2 cup almonds, blanched, slightly browned and chopped. Mix the sugar, cornstarch and salt together. Add the milk and cook for 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Stir in the egg yolks which have been slightly beaten, and cook on double boiler until thick and creamy. Add vanilla. Add the chopped almonds and cool before spreading between the layers of cake.

WHITE ICING
2 egg whites, 1 1/2 cups light cream unbeaten 1/2 cup sugar
5 tbsps. water 1 1/2 cups sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
Combine egg whites, sugar, water and corn syrup in top of double boiler, beating with egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water. Beat with egg beater until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread.

Maple sugar mixed with equal portions of chopped nuts makes a good topping for tiny biscuits to be served for tea. As soon as they are baked the biscuits should be spread with butter and served hot.

Roasts, steaks, chops and most other cuts of meat except stewing and soup meats should be cooked quickly for several minutes to sear the outside. Scoring keeps in the juices of the meat.

Rice or macaroni will not boil in the same water as the egg whites which are boiled in the top of a cup of the sugar. Fold in the cream. Fold in the flour which has

Situation Is Trap for Most Players

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Book players" came to grief in question 38 of the recent examination, which was:

Both sides vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

North East South West Heart Double ?

976542 ♠ None ♦ 512 ♠ J843

What call do you make?

The answer was that South should take out to one spade; that this is the only situation in bridge that permits a "free bid" which is, in reality, a rescue. Many disgruntled readers wrote that they could find no authority for this in the Gold Book. In a sense it is gratifying to learn that this book is followed so literally, but I call attention once more to my oft-repeated assertion that "any one who plays 100 percent according to any book is bound to become a wooden player." In this case, however, the correct answer could easily be found by the process of elimination on page 191 of the Gold Book. In discussing "Bids Over Opponents' Take-out Double" I set forth (a) "with strong hands, redouble with distributed strength, or make a jump forcing take-out with a weak;" (b) "with moderate hands, one to one and one-half honor tricks, take out in no trump or in five card suit;" (c) "with hands weak in honors, but strong distributionally, make a shut-out raise or shut-out bid in a strong rebiddable suit. Finally, (d) with weak hands, pass unless a raise can be given."

Obviously, the hand in question 38 does not fit exactly into any of the four mentioned categories. It contains no honor strength, and neither does it contain a strong rebiddable suit. Obviously, South cannot raise hearts when void of the suit, nor can he even "stand for" a one heart bid. By pure logic, then, he should arrive at the correct solution of bidding one spade as an easily recognizable rescue bid. His six card spade suit is fully the equal, for bidding purposes in this situation, of a hand such as:

♠ A Q 3 2 ♥ 2 ♦ 6 5 4 2 ♣ 6 5 4 2

In this case, also, one spade would be the correct bid.

It is potentially impossible to cover in one book, however complete, the millions of bidding situations that arise, and I strongly commend my readers to use their heads when they encounter one that has not been specifically covered.

TODAY'S HAND

The situation described below often is a trap for the average declarer:

South, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

♠ Q 9
♥ K 4 5
♦ 7 6 5
♣ A 10 9 8

WEST EAST
♠ K 8 ♠ A 10 5 4 3 2
♥ 10 9 4 3 ♥ 6 2
♦ A K 9 8 4 2 ♦ A 3
♣ 5 ♣ 6 1 5

The bidding:

South West North East
1 heart 2 diamonds 3 clubs Pass
4 clubs Pass 4 hearts Pass
Pass Pass

West opened the diamond king and East started an echo with the jack. The diamond ace then was cashed and, at the third trick, West led a low diamond, hoping that by forcing East to ruff with as high a trump as possible, declarer would be induced to overruff with an honor. The best East could do was the six spot, and declarer easily could have overruffed with the seven, but he did not fall into this serious error. He recognized the grave danger of the trump suit might not split 3-3. If there was a 4-2 split, and west had the four card length, it probably would be fatal for declarer to reduce his own trumps below West's level. Declarer could afford to give up another trick at this point, if by so doing, he retained full control. Instead of overruffing East's heart six, he merely discarded a low spade. East returned a spade, declarer won the ace and drew all the trumps, then ran the club suit, discarding the remaining spade loser on the fifth club.

TOMORROW'S HAND

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ A K 10 5
♦ A K 2 5
♣ 2 8 6 2

WEST EAST
♠ 4 6 ♠ K Q 2 4 3
♥ 10 8 ♥ K 4 2 5
♦ Q 7 5 4 ♦ A 2 6

So while change is good, familiarity is basic to the formation of associations and habits. The two principles must be respected.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

Every athlete should know Houdini's famous secret for holding his breath. In fact, it would be almost impossible for anybody to do it again at the end of this case record, and you yourself, then try it again at the end of this case record, or even treble your previous record.

CASE M-123: Bill D., aged 20, is an excellent college swimmer. "I used to be able to beat my brother at holding my breath," he began, "but when I went home at the last holiday season, he suddenly beat me."

"Feeling maybe there was a trick to it somehow, I challenged him to go down to the Y.M.C.A. pool and try it under water. Well, chemistry and physiology of breathing.

When we draw a normal breath, as in sleeping, we inhale about 500 cubic centimeters of fresh air. This is about a pint. But our lungs will hold nearly four quarts.

Houdini's Secret Revealed

If we fill our lungs with the deepest possible inspiration, and then hold it, we can last nearly for a minute before we get panicky for a fresh breath.

Our hunter for fresh air at that moment, however, doesn't mean we have consumed all the oxygen in our lungs. It simply means that the film of air next to the lung tissue has been depleted and filled with carbon dioxide. If we could stir the air in our lungs, we could utilize the oxygen in the center of the air column.

When we exhale, a great deal of this unused oxygen pours out. A part of Houdini's secret, therefore, consisted of stirring the air in his lungs. But we can also build up a temporary oxygen reserve in the blood itself if we inhale deeply for 12 or 15 times prior to holding the last breath.

This rapid breathing makes us feel dizzy, as many of you have noted when blowing a fire. You can actually faint from the dizziness that results by such extra aerations of the blood. An extra 30 seconds or more can add to your breath-holding time if you will but take a number of deep breaths in rapid succession.

The Lung's Snare Tire

But our lungs also have an important call a "snare tire". In our stomachs there is always an air cap, as you can easily observe on an x-ray picture of that organ.

There may be a pint of fresh air in your stomach ready for use if you know how to tap it. And here is how: Hold your nose and then belch. This fresh air from the stomach will rise in your throat and mix with the stale air in your lungs. Swallow several times, and belch again. By this method you not only stir the air in your lungs but bring in a fresh supply.

To attain 2 or 3 minutes breath-holding time, just breathe deeply for a dozen times, hold the last inspiration, and then tap your stomach air by the method just described. You'll surprise yourself and your friends.

Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Letters and addresses names are never published. (Copyright, 1938)

Common Sense Is Fundamental Factor in Marriage Success

BY DOROTHY DIX

The most important factor in making marriage a success is common sense. I put that even above love, because love does not solve the problems of communal life. Love can hurt us terribly, and many a husband and wife who love enough to be willing to die for each other cannot live together in peace.

DOROTHY DIX

They know this drives their husbands frantic, but it is their love forces them to do it. A little commonsense would prevent the catastrophe that takes place when the poor prisoner of love breaks away from freedom and some other woman. Commonsense would teach them that a man listens to his wife when she says a thing once, but he shuts his ears when it becomes her theme song, and that, anyway, by the time a man is old enough to get married he has picked out the patterns of life that he prefers and a wife interferes with it at her peril.

Then there is jealousy, which is the offspring of love. It makes husbands and wives murder each other. It fills the divorce courts. It makes innumerable homes hell on earth, where green-eyed men and women screech their foul suspicions at each other.

The only remedy for jealousy, the only preventive of it, is commonsense. Just let a husband and wife face the cold truth that they can't always be happy together and that in the end they've got to trust them, and that they will go straight or crooked in accordance to the honor that is in them, and they would save themselves a lot of misery.

What's the use of bothering over a man who is so poor to create his grandmother out to lunch? And why get a headache over a wife whose principles are so loose that she can't be polite to her dinner partner without rousing suspicions in one's mind?

Commonsense is also the antidote for what we are pleased to call the disillusion of marriage. That gone feeling, you know, that comes to every married couple when they realize that the ones they have tied up with are neither angels nor little tin gods, but just ordinary, run-of-the-mill human beings; that making a home and rearing a family is going to be a chore instead of a picnic.

So there isn't a creaked-up marriage that you can't solve by using a pinch of commonsense. (Copyright, 1939)

"So many beautiful women here tonight," Noel said to David, after she'd left her wrap in one of the dressing-rooms and joined him.

"Not one of them can touch you," David whispered back.

Many others shared his admiring attitude, for he was continuously approached and had to present other men to Noel. She smiled and acknowledged the introductions but stayed by David's side and when a footman brought them champagne cocktails, he found a seat at the far end of the room, opposite the entrance.

Soon they were the center of a laughing group, as other couples joined them.

As her eyes strayed across the smooth floor to a group near the door, Noel gasped in surprise, almost got up, in the pleasant, unexpectedness of the newest arrival.

Allan looking more attractive than ever in formal clothes, was making away from the door. Noel had an impulse to call to him but she checked herself. She had just shocked disappointment, stayed her gesture. Elaine Schuyler, independent in black velvet and diamonds, took Allan's arm with a prescient gesture. He was Elaine's escort. And Allan loved Elaine Schuyler!

From that moment, some of the pleasure went out of the party for Noel. She put it to regret that Allan who had been so bitterly hurt by Elaine should still be under her spell. Should still be ready for her when her foolishly romantic marriage had ended in Reno.

Later Allan saw Noel and greeted her cordially.

"Hello, Noel. Mother sends her love. I just got in town a few hours ago."

Lights from a huge crystal chandelier caught the gleam of brilliant fabrics and sparkling jewels.

"So many beautiful women here tonight," Noel said to David, after she'd left her wrap in one of the dressing-rooms and joined him.

"Not one of them can touch you," David whispered back.

Many others shared his admiring attitude, for he was continuously approached and had to present other men to Noel. She smiled and acknowledged the introductions but stayed by David's side and when a footman brought them champagne cocktails, he found a seat at the far end of the room, opposite the entrance.

Soon they were the center of a laughing group, as other couples joined them.

As her eyes strayed across the smooth floor to a group near the door, Noel gasped in surprise, almost got up, in the pleasant, unexpectedness of the newest arrival.

Allan looking more attractive than ever in formal clothes, was making away from the door. Noel had an impulse to call to him but she checked herself. She had just shocked disappointment, stayed her gesture. Elaine Schuyler, independent in black velvet and diamonds, took Allan's arm with a prescient gesture. He was Elaine's escort. And Allan loved Elaine Schuyler!

From that moment, some of the pleasure went out of the party for Noel. She put it to regret that Allan who had been so bitterly hurt by Elaine should still be under her spell. Should still be ready for her when her foolishly romantic marriage had ended in Reno.

Later Allan saw Noel and greeted her cordially.

"Hello, Noel. Mother sends her love. I just got in town a few hours ago."

Routine Makes for Physical And Mental Health, Growth

BY ANGELO PATRI

We have to routine a child's life to help him to a feeling of security, the most essential feeling in a child's mental health. Changing mealtime from time to time so that a child never knows when to expect his food, having bedtime when convenient for everybody except the child, doing things as the fancy dictates at the moment, prevents the setting of useful habits. Routine makes for physical and mental health and real growth.

But it is possible to be too rigid in this important matter. It is possible to fix a situation so firmly in the mind of a child that the accustomed behavior more important than his cause. A child had been the situation to have his meals at a little table set in a corner of a certain room. When his table was moved to another set he refused to eat. It was not an expression of disobedience, or wilfulness; it was his feeling of loss. The old situation was too familiar, and he was bound by it. He had to make a fresh start and he had not been prepared for it.

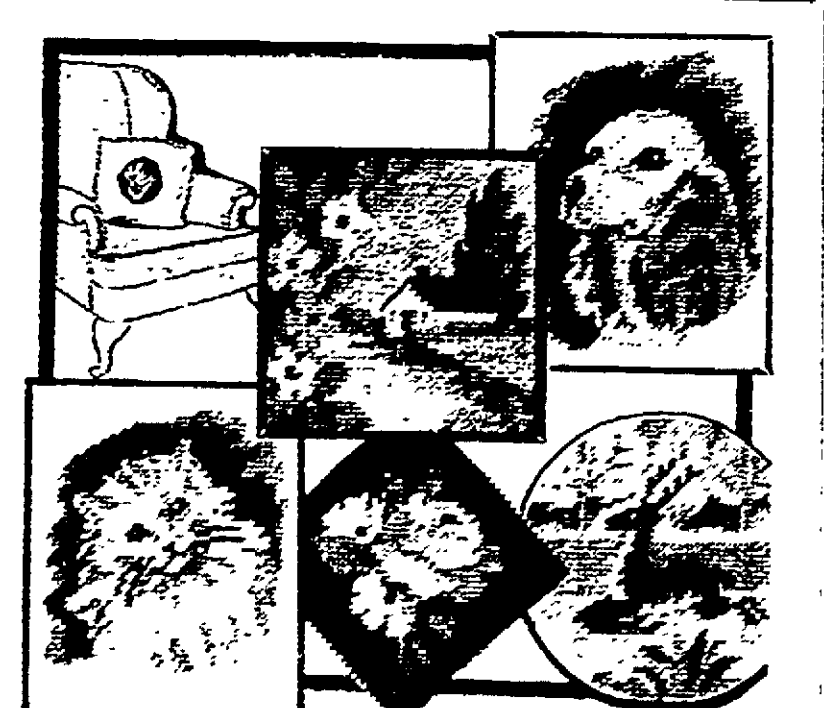

I think it is always a good scheme to prepare a child for changes. It is always good to carry the routine while its basic principles are held. For instance, sitting at a little table is fine, but it is just as well to move it to a little within the accustomed room, even outside it, now and then.

When making changes like this in a little child's routine, make them gradually. Let the person who is to relieve mother at bedtime time appear with mother often enough to let the child become accustomed to his or her presence. Let this person gradually take over the function, first handling the soap as a contribution, another time doing the powdering, another maybe the drying off and holding with the night clothes. That allows the change to take place without shock.

Familiar situations form associations in the child's mind. The bath means mother and much water and the feeling of comfort afterward. The little table in the corner means dinner and a comfortable feeling. The after a child has become accustomed to one situation it is time to vary it a little, but not before. It is best to have him learn one thing before making any new motions. After he learns to eat at his table in the corner of the dining-room the table can be moved, but not before. After he has learned to welcome his bath at his mother's hands it is time to let somebody else try.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Ice skating is a pleasing and picturesque way to exercise. It beautifies the entire body and therefore every girl should learn how to skate.

This week I will consider the lucky girls who may indulge in winter sports—skating, skiing, snow-sledding, tobogganing or snow-shoeing. Next week we will go to the sunny south and take up the beauty problems there for this season.

Active and spectator sports clothes this year have borrowed inspiration from the Tyrol and have gone in for the gayest of colors and splashes of embroidered designs. So, a girl must look to her cosmetics to complete the colorful picture of chic damsel gliding fashionably in the snow! Or if she is a genuine outdoor girl and cares little for the dictates of fashion, she must still protect her skin and hair from the ravages of snow play.

May Limit Speed On Some Roads in Outagamie County

County Safety Council Outlines Objectives At Meeting

Outagamie County's new Safety council, in its first meeting of the new year at the courthouse last night, adopted bylaws for its guidance and outlined a number of objectives. The bylaws call for regular meetings every three months, but during the period of organization at least special meetings will be held at more frequent intervals. The next meeting will be on Feb. 16.

A committee headed by A. T. Gardner, Combined Locks, was instructed to continue its investigation of motion picture projectors and was empowered to purchase a machine. It is proposed to show safety motion pictures as a part of the council's educational campaign.

Another committee headed by Joseph Doerflinger, Kimberly, will confer with county traffic officers, county board committees and the sheriff's department about patrolling rural highways, and a third committee, headed by F. R. Appleton, Oneida, was instructed to see what can be done about establishing reasonable speed limits on certain county and town roads on which there have been a large number of accidents. This committee also was instructed to see what can be done about removal of advertising signs and other objectionable material for highway right-of-way.

Erection of a larger "spot" map to show the nature and location of accidents was left for investigation to another committee headed by W. H. Webb of Kimberly.

R. W. Mahony, chairman of the council, who presided last night, said the council is proceeding carefully in its formative stages, and is endeavoring to arrange a constructive program that will meet the approval of every one interested in making safer use of highways.

Utility Is Accused Of Overstatement In 1934 Report

SEC Charges Associated Gas and Electric Over- Estimated Assets

Washington—(AP)—The securities commission accused Associated Gas and Electric company today of setting up its records in a way which resulted in an overstatement of its property account in 1934 by about $170,000,000.

The company, which has gross assets of more than $1,600,000,000, was charged by the commission with making "false and misleading statements" with respect to material facts.

It has subsidiary properties in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, New Jersey, Florida and Georgia. The commission ordered a hearing to be held in Washington Feb. 14 to determine whether shares of the company should be delisted. Stocks of the company are traded on the Boston Stock Exchange, the Los Angeles Stock Exchange and the New York Curb.

The SEC also charged the company with handling its accounts in a way which resulted in overstatement of consolidated earned surplus by about $135,000,000 in 1934.

Statement Filed

In the same year, the commission charged, the company set up its accounts in a way which resulted in understating a 1934 loss by about $2,600,000.

The charges relative to 1934 pertained to a registration statement filed with the commission.

The commission said also the company had failed to disclose its relationship to persons controlling it, "or to state material facts pertinent to the possible existence of effective control."

The company, it was charged, also failed to state required information on the aggregate remuneration paid to certain service companies and others. Another charge was the company neglected to name the persons other than directors, officers or employees whose aggregate remuneration was more than $20,000 in 1934.

In addition to misstatements found in the registration statement for 1934, the commission said, the handling of accounts was misleading in the annual reports for 1933, 1936 and 1937.

Snow to Continue, Is Weather Report

Spring-Like Spell Ended; 31 Degrees This Afternoon

Giant-sized snowflakes plastered a winter setting back on Appleton today after an unusual mild wave had left streets, sidewalks, and a good share of the ground bare.

The Milwaukee weather bureau predicted "occasional snow" for tonight and tomorrow throughout the state. Temperatures were mild today, however, with the thermometer reading 31 degrees in the city at 1:30 this afternoon.

For the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 29, recorded at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and the lowest 17, registered at 10 o'clock last night, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

There was snow in the midwest and east and rain in much of the south today, the Associated Press reported. Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., produced yesterday's high, 80 degrees. Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., had zero weather to take low honors.

suburb. Dr. Mordoff fled down a corridor and stumbled into the reception room of Dr. Floyd L. McGrath's office, with the slayer in pursuit.

From the entrance of the reception room the gunman fired a shot which shattered the glass of an inner office door. Dr. Mordoff swung open the door and was standing in front of the startled Dr. McGrath when the slayer fired a fourth shot. The bullet pierced Dr. Mordoff's chest and spent its force against Dr. McGrath's abdomen, causing a bruise.

Dr. Mordoff died without naming his assassin. The gunman departed unhurriedly, passing Dr. Walter Schnur, a dentist, and the latter's secretary, Esther Pinkowski, in the corridor.

Chief McGuire said Quinn was identified early today by Doctors McGrath and Schnur and Miss Pinkowski. The police began a search for him after interviewing Gordon Mordoff, II, 23, son of the physician. He said Quinn, armed with a pistol, came to his home Wednesday and said he was looking for the doctor.

Sensational Case

The sensational "Sonny Boy" case revolved around the paternity of a three-and-a-half-year-old boy who had been reared by the Mordoffs since he was eight months old.

Dr. Mordoff claimed the child had been born to his wife, Madge, at the home of his parents in Minneapolis. Miss Margaret Mann, 22, confessed she was the mother of the child.

Miss Mann, who married Ray Alfred Fletcher during the litigation, testified the boy was born out of wedlock in a Chicago orphanage, that she had boarded "Sonny Boy" at the Mordoff home, and that subsequently Mrs. Mordoff kept the child and represented him as her own.

Circuit Judge Rudolph Desort ruled Miss Mann was the mother of "Sonny Boy." The boy, named Reginald Arthur Mann, now is in her custody.

Births

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Swanke, Tigerton, yesterday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

A daughter was born this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stingle, Black Creek, at St. Elizabeth hospital.

It Is Said--

That the "June in January" weather Appleton has had for the last week created an unusual situation in the city street department. The city's mechanical street sweeper yesterday was out cleaning the downtown streets just like in the middle of summer while other street department workmen were plowing and hauling snow in front of the new senior high school.

That the per capita circulation of books at the Appleton Public Li- brary indicates that every person in the city reads approximately 10 books per year, which is well above the average. Total circulation last year was 267,994 volumes.

Progressive Bloc Delays Repeal of Organization Act

Laurie E. Carlson, (P), Bayfield, to the committee on revision. The contest over the seat now held by Arthur J. Blazer, (D), West Allis, who tied with William Luebke, Jr., (P), was referred to the committee on elections. Blazer won the seat after drawing lots.

Tax Extension Bill

Reno W. Trego, (P), Merrill, introduced the first bill in the assembly calling upon the state to pay slightly more than $1,000 in damages for sheep killed by bears in Lincoln county.

A bill granting authority to towns, villages and cities to extend the time for payment of 1938 real estate taxes until July 1, 1939, without penalty, was introduced by John T. Kostuch, (P), Stevens Point; Arthur Kelly, (P), Hudson; Grosvenor, Palmer F. Daugson, (D), Ft. Atkinson; Charles A. Budlong, (R), Marinette, and Herbert C. Schenk, (P), Madison. A similar bill was introduced by William F. Double, (R), Milwaukee.

Double also offered a bill which would allow deductions from income taxes for dependents under 21 years instead of the present age limit of 18.

Schenk introduced a bill providing for a third circuit judge in the Ninth district—Dane county.

Exemption Proposal

A bill which would exempt all homesteads of beneficiaries of old age assistance from all liens or claims was brought to the house by Henry J. Eberquist, (P), Rhineland. He said the measure was sponsored by the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor. Another bill, introduced by Robert E. Tehan, (D), Milwaukee, provided for clarification of jurisdiction in the management of the Milwaukee House of Correction.

The senate judiciary committee held a public hearing yesterday on the resolution of Senator Kenneth White, (R), River Falls, to repeal 26 governmental shifts which former Governor LaFollette made by executive order and was prepared to report it out for a vote today.

Willis E. Donley, Menomonie, former Democratic assemblyman, appeared before the senate committee and asked Republicans and Democrats to vote unanimously for the White resolution.

He listed various executive orders which he labeled as especially objectionable. One abolished the board of trustees of Stout institute at Menomonie and transferred the institute to the board of normal regents. Donley said the institute has a worldwide reputation and that the transfer reduced it to the status of a teachers college.

Criticizes Transfer

Charging that the Federal Land Bank at St. Paul is wrecking Wisconsin agriculture through foreclosure of mortgages, Donley criticized the shift of the farm and home credit administration from the governor's office to the department of agriculture and markets.

"The governor ought to have that administration under his thumb," he said. "I am satisfied Governor Heil would not sit idly by and see the Federal Land bank disrupt the state's agriculture."

Donley also criticized transfer of the securities division from the public service commission to the banking commission, asserting it was to be transferred anywhere it should have been placed directly under the governor's control to protect Wisconsin investors.

Senator Walter Rush, Neillsville, Progressive leader, opposed the resolution. He said the author had no right to assess the reorganization act was unconstitutional and that the senate would be acting arbitrarily to wipe out the changes

Study Investment Field to Avoid Losses, Van Vonderen Urges in Talk to Woman's Club

KEEPING ABREAST of changing conditions and picking the right spot in the proper industry, by diversifying investments, by placing money with established and reputable companies in whom one has confidence, by investigating through many sources and making some study of investments one can guard against bad investments, according to E. J. Van Vonderen who spoke before Appleton Federated Woman's club yesterday afternoon on "Stock Trading and Investments."

"Get inquisitive about the investment field," he urged his listeners, pointing out that many women who find themselves suddenly faced with the necessity of handling money and investing it, do not know the difference between stocks and bonds.

He cautioned his audience to be wary of tipster sheets they might receive in the mail, also to keep their securities in their own possession. He mentioned the four manuals on bonds which are available to those interested in which bonds are listed and rated for the convenience and information of purchasers.

Mr. Van Vonderen explained briefly the various types of investments and defined some of the expressions used in stock trading such as first and second mortgage bonds, sinking fund, lease hold bond, debenture bond, preferred and common stock, par value and listed securities.

He cautioned his listeners that first mortgage bonds are only as good as the security behind them, and pointed out that two things are to be taken into consideration, the utility of the property and the ability of the corporation to make it pay. A lease hold bond is very dangerous, for when a building is erected on property which is only leased from the owner, if the corporation cannot pay the rent the owner can take the property and the building with it.

The speaker explained the process of buying securities and described the working of the New York stock exchange. He pointed out the danger of buying on margin. For the protection of investors the securities and exchange commission was set up in 1933. Mr. Van Vonderen explained, and the Wisconsin Securities commission has been established for further protection, for all companies must file a financial statement with the latter body.

Movie Land Its People and Products

Paul Muni and John Garfield—brilliant newcomers to Hollywood—meet on the 'lot' and powwow about old times—which are not so 'old' at that for John is in his middle twenties. When Muni was starring on the Broadway stage in "Counsellor at Law" he saw to it that a persistent, wistful-faced kid got a 'bit' in the play. The kid kept on, appeared in many plays and was the lead in "Golden Boy" when the talent scout saw him and whisked him to the Coast. His screen debut in "Four Daughters" caused such a furore that he was given the principal role in "Blackwell's Island" and is being starred in "They Made Me a Criminal." Muni's next starring vehicle is "Juarez"—story of the empire-building misadventures of Maximilian and Carlotta in Mexico and of the Mexican patriot, Juarez.

Give Henry King, the director, all the credit due him and you'll still be amazed—as I was—that any girl who has neither been extensively trained, nor buffeted about by life, could give such a role the deep sincerity and conviction that Nancy Kelly gives it. There's just one conclusion possible: some people have an inborn ability to understand and express emotion. You're going to be cheering for Nancy for years to come.

Appleton Man Tells Of 5,000-Mile Trip In Northern Canada

Neenah—Karl M. Haugen, Appleton, described and showed colored moving pictures of a trip into northern Canada at the noon meeting of the Neenah Rotary club Thursday at the Valley Inn.

Haugen said his trip covered more than 5,000 miles by train, air, canoe and walking. He told about posts owned by the Hudson Bay company, some of which are conducted the same as 250 years ago. The company still uses 600 dogs, 1,200 canoes and has 225 posts scattered throughout the northern wasteland.

The trip took the Appleton man to Churchill which he said is as far north from Neenah as Mexico City is as far south. There are only 12 white families in the town, and the town is 500 miles north of the nearest tree. The only vegetation is moss, and the barrens are permanently frozen eight inches below the moss.

He related a thrilling experience of hunting a whale in a canoe which was about 25 feet long with a 7-foot beam. The canoe, he said, was powered by an outboard motor boat.

Warm Weather Delays Annual Ice Harvest

Neenah—The annual harvest of natural ice from Lake Winnebago at Neenah will be delayed until later this month, on more specific, the icy, cold weather has made the ice a lot thicker than it is now. If the present type of weather keeps up, however, the harvest will be started soon, for it was reported here today that the ice on the lake is about 12 inches thick.

In other years, it was possible to start the ice harvest after the Christmas holidays, but the unseasonable warm weather lately has changed the whole routine. Although the ice can be cut when it is 12 inches thick, it is better if it is at least 14 or 15 inches thick.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES
2:30—Wires versus Taxis.
8:30—Y. M. C. A. versus Elm Trees.
9:30—Lutz Ice versus Merchants.

It was probably was the most exciting basketball game on the Y. M. C. A. court in several seasons, the youthful Merchant team defeated the veteran Elm Tree Bakery team by a 23 to 21 score last night. The defeat was the first for the Bakers this season in league play but now that the ice has been broken, several other clubs in the circuit are pointing for their game with the highly-touted Bakers. The defeat failed to oust the Bakers from first in the league standings but it improved the Merchant hold on second place.

Showing Don Powers, Don Paulie, Bob Thoms and John Gochler of recent high school teams, the Merchants played cautious ball, used every break to advantage and put up a zone defense which the Bakers found hard to penetrate.

During the first quarter the Merchants held the Bakers to four points while counting seven for themselves. In the second period the procedure was practically the same and the long rest saw the score 13 to 8 for the Merchants.

The third period saw the Bakers try to overhaul the Merchants and the margin was cut to 17 to 14, with 30 seconds left to play in the final stanza, and the Merchants in front by 23 to 18, Cliff Burton broke around the Merchant defense and scored and was fouled. He made the free throw to bring the Bakers into the game. With two seconds remaining, Wonsor got the ball and finally maneuvered for a shot which was just a second too late. The Bakers lost a chance to tie.

Powers, Paulie, Thoms and Gochler featured Merchant play while Verbrick, Krause and Burton looked best for the Bakers.

Taxis Tip Y. M. C. A.
Taxis turned in a minor upset when they tipped the Y. M. C. A. entry, 26 to 27. The Taxis led 11 to 6 at the quarter, 16 to 15 at the half and 23 to 19 at the third quarter. The game was much closer than the score indicates and the lead changed hands at least a dozen times. The game was marked by fast, hard and sometimes rough play.

Lutz Ice company five continued to take the jumps and dropped a 27 to 24 game to the Wire Works. The Iceemen enjoyed a 3 to 2 lead at the end of the quarter but the Wire Works came from 10 to 9, at the half. In the third period the Wire Works led 20 to 17.

Both teams showed tight defenses and the Iceemen were improved in ball handling. Millard got four baskets for the losers and Lesselyoung five and Zimmerman four for the Wire Works.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, Owner Of New York Yankees, Dies

NEW YORK—(AP)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, died at 9:28 a. m., C. S. T. today. Ruppert who was 71, had been ill in health for many months. He took a turn for the worse early this week, and the last rites of the Roman Catholic church were administered to him.

Last April he suffered an attack of phlebitis (inflammation of the veins), and from this complications developed.

Ruppert, a bachelor and owner of vast, real estate holdings, had a fortune estimated by associates as between $70,000,000 and $100,000,000.

In a bulletin issued last night at his fifth avenue home he was reported as "resting easily."

During the evening he was given nourishment in the form of egg and milk. Then he said good night and went to sleep. His personal physician, Dr. Otto Schwerdtfeger, said this morning Ruppert had had a restful night.

Earlier this week Ruppert had expressed confidence in his recovery.

He turned to the "bangtails" for diversion but his string of race horses won so many purses that it began to take on the aspects of a profitable business and he quit the turf. He collected St. Bernard dogs that cost $5,000 a year to feed. His succession of yachts was climaxed

4-Rounder Holds Interest Tonight at Garden Program

Will Show Pat Comiskey, Hottest Novice Heavy In Country

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Patrick Edward Comiskey, an 18-year old prodigy from Paterson, N. J., will make big-time boxing history tonight when he fights one Marty Lieberman of Newark in a four-rounder at Madison Square Garden.

What's history making about it is the fact Patrick Edward's four-rounder has been spotted in the semifinal position, right next to the feature 10-rounder between Tommy Farr, the ever-losing Welshman, and Red Burman of Baltimore. It is, furthermore, by popular demand.

Preceding Comiskey's duel will occur no fewer than two other 10-round heavyweight battles, Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia meeting Roscoe Toles of Detroit in one, and Buddy Knox of Dayton, Ohio, facing Nick Fiorentino of Philadelphia in the other. All this beef on the hoof has been forced to give way to the glamour boy from Paterson.

The oldest inhabitant says nothing like it has ever happened before, and chances are they are correct. Special permission from the boxing commission was necessary before the bout could be sandwiched between the three "main events."

Punch Is Legend
Comiskey happens to be the hottest thing in the way of novice heavyweights in the country right now. At last official count he had scored seven straight one-round knockouts. His right-hand punch that stiffens every man it hits is becoming a legend.

Due to his tender years, Pat probably will not be permitted to fight a six-rounder before 1940. Promoter Mike Jacobs is predicting the sensational youngster will, before that, draw as high as $2,500 for a four-round engagement.

Comiskey's first Garden appearance was on the Nova-Farr program a month ago. None except the earliest arrivals saw him, for he battled his scared opponent out with the first kick he hit him, in the opening preliminary.

So many managers have tried to buy a piece of Comiskey that Bill Daly, who owns the boy, has set a price of $40,000 for a half-interest, knowing full well that no manager has that much cash money.

Light-Heavyweight Title May Go to Conn, Young Irisher With Educated Left Hand

BY DILLON GRAHAM
NEW YORK.—(AP)—Billy Conn, a handsome young Irishman with a whip-snake left hand, may win the light-heavyweight championship the first time he tosses a punch in that class.

This overvict middleweight, up from the streets of a steel town, caught the fancy of Manhattan's fight fraternity by his stylish triumph over Fearless Freddy Apostoli.

The jab-and-hook critics tab the Pittsburgher as the finest prospect to come along in several years.

The quick-stabbing Irishman chose Apostoli, the world middleweight champion—by grace of the N. Y. boxing commission—as his rival for his Madison Square Garden debut, and won a close but clear 10-round decision.

Unless Apostoli sidetracks him over the 15-round route in their return match February 10 Conn probably will get a crack at the light-heavyweight title in April or May against Melio Bettina or Tiger Jack Fox, who squabble over that championship in February.

A Growing Boy
The 21-year-old Conn has outgrown the middleweight division, and had an 8-pound shade over Apostoli. He doesn't plan to tarry long among the light-heavies, either. Billy is eating himself into the heavyweight group, where the big money lies.

He figures to take Bettina or Fox and when he adds another 20 pounds or so to his present 170 he may be a menace to Joe Louis. He and Lou Nova certainly are the best-looking youngsters of the day.

He is the speediest young big fellow to show around here in ages. There's no bob or weave about Billy. He's a standup fighter. A boxer rather than a puncher.

Conn's left flashes like a cobra striking. His left jab is a thing of beauty but it doesn't carry the authority that Louis' does. It serves him well in keeping his foe off balance and out of range.

Conn sidles about, moving in and out and around and leaves himself a pretty hard target to locate.

He's Smart, Too
For his age and experience he is unusually ring-wise. He gave Apostoli a nifty boxing lesson. He hasn't learned to handle himself against the webbing. And he doesn't take punishment any too well down stairs. Billy has plenty of the old moxie and fights back strongly after an opponent's flurry.

Conn is a good two-fisted fighter, but doesn't carry much of a sleep-producing punch. He's had only seven knockouts in 50 fights since he started as a lightweight three years ago. But he won 34 by decision. In his brief career he's beaten six chaps who have worn the middleweight crown—Babe Rieko, Vince Dundee, Teddy Yarosz, Young Corbett, Solly Krieger and Apostoli.

Billy describes himself as a real Mick. His father, a steamfitter, was born in Belfast. His mother was a McFarland from County Down, Ireland.

Conn may find Apostoli a tougher customer at 15 rounds, but if he gets by Freddy again he'll probably grab the light-heavyweight crown (N. Y. state variety). Give him a year or so to put on more poundage and absorb more experience and he may trouble Joe Louis.

WOULD STOP BETTING
Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—The house of representatives received yesterday a bill which would abolish pari-mutuel betting on horse races in Michigan. Under the present law, such betting is restricted to race tracks, making handbooks illegal. The repeal measure was introduced by Representative Joseph E. Warner, Republican, who said the state should be consistent and forbid gambling of all kinds.

Billy Conn, young Pittsburgh Irishman, exhibits his fast, stinging left, much to Fred Apostoli's discomfort. Apostoli, recognized as middleweight champion in New York, wasn't quick enough to dodge many of Conn's southpaw shots like the one he's trying to duck above and Billy took a 10-round decision. They'll fight again February 10 at 15 rounds.

The Press will put on the rink a young team, but veterans of many a hockey battle, while Kuehne's will have a much older team. The actual lineups for the Lubinski and the Schweger teams have not yet been announced, but for the Press and Kuehne's team it is as follows:

Kuehne—M. Puls, L.W. Puls, R.W. Puls, L.D. C. Kuehne, Jr., R.D. Puls, Huelst, L.W. J. Sherman, R.W. K. VanVuren, C. W. Jensen, R.D. Pasch, L.D. B. Page, G. There are four teams in the league at the present time. Anyone who wishes to play or sponsor a team may leave his name at the Press office by Saturday noon.

CALL BASEBALL MEETING

The Seymour Baseball association will hold its annual meeting at the city hall Thursday evening, Jan. 19. Baseball for 1939 will be the main topic of discussion. After the success enjoyed last year in the Northern State league, Seymour no doubt will again enter its team in this league. There is some talk of forming a baseball corporation. Last year there were 151 fans who donated to the baseball association. If the same number of fans can be sold shares in a corporation, the Seymour team will be on a sound financial basis. Prospects for this year's team will be discussed by Bill Row, manager. One new director will be elected to take the place of Frank Lubinski, who moved away.

Wolves, Gophers Tangle Saturday In Cage Feature

Minnesota Favored: Ailing Badgers Will Meet Indiana

Chicago.—(AP)—Minnesota, whose powerhouse tactics no longer are confined to the gridiron, turns loose its undefeated basketball bombers against Michigan tomorrow night in quest of a third straight Big Ten victory.

The Gophers' blazed away last season for nine successive triumphs, and virtually the same cast began the current campaign. With nine victories already in the bag, Minnesota ranks as the choice to usurp the crown of Purdue's defending champions.

Michigan, cruising in the same winning groove its revitalized football team charted several months ago, hopes to go a step farther than the Wolverine gridmen who lost a one point decision to the Gophers.

The game at Ann Arbor was one of five billed for tomorrow as all members renew the title chase. The rest of the schedule: Illinois at Chicago, Ohio State at Northwestern, Purdue at Iowa and Wisconsin at Indiana.

Illinois, which received its first setback of the season Monday, a one-point defeat by Indiana, will take on the rangy and anything but deflated Chicago Maroons who appear destined to have a powerful say in this year's race after finishing last in 1938.

Ohio State, with last year's third place team almost intact and already triumphant over a favored Indiana five, will go after its second straight Extension. Purdue must check Ben Stephens, whose singlehanded efforts almost gave Iowa victory over Minnesota, Indiana, which bounced back after its surprise at Ohio State, will encounter Wisconsin.

Only Minnesota, Ohio State and Purdue remained undefeated after the first week of conference play.

BADGERS AILING

Madison.—(AP)—Coach Harold (Bud) Foster announced today he would take a squad of 10 or 11 Wisconsin cagers for weekend games with Indiana University at Bloomington Saturday night and Michigan next Monday night.

The Badgers will leave Madison late today. Those assured of making the trip include Byron Bell and Gene Englund, centers; Dave Dupree, Andy Smith, Walter Anderson and Bob Schwartz, forwards; Ernie Davis, Bob Weigandt, John Rundell and John Gallagher, guards. Paul Murphy, sophomore forward, may also be taken along.

One of the regulars, Davis, is the only one in top physical condition. Foster said. Weigandt and Bell have foot injuries. Dupree has missed several practice sessions because of illness, and Smith is nursing a cut on his chin.

Ethical Papers Hampered in Answering Jibes of Radicals

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—Among those who insist that the truth is not in American newspapers the first argument is that their dependence on advertising revenues compels them to serve the interests of those who buy the space.

But the very fact that a paper is a big business, with valuable plant and other assets derived from advertising receipts, serves to promote truth and temperance of expression as well. For proof it is necessary only to turn to the rasping little periodicals of limited circulation, which describe themselves as liberal, progressive or radical, and check their material on points of fact. It will then be found that a bold and raucous style of presentation, a fixed policy of snarling at all persons or groups of opposed opinion, particularly at conservatives, often substitutes for honesty and that their lack of attachable assets, beyond a couple of typewriters and a few office chairs and filing cabinets, relieves them of the decent restraints that control their wealthy contemporaries.

They are judgment-proof, and persons who would be quick to sue a regular daily newspaper for libel by falsehood or malicious ridicule, and reasonably sure to collect substantial damages, simply don't bother to entertain in their columns.

For one reason, the circulation of the unfair remarks has been small, and a suit would serve to spread them further; for another, a suit might create publicity for an obscure publication, a hope which causes their editors to court legal reprisals, and, finally, the victim of the wrong usually doesn't want to waste his time for no cash return.

The moderation which came with assets and responsibility as the daily press of this country developed a partnership with commerce is a public protection against the scurrilous abuse, the class-interpretation amounting to downright news-poisoning and the sullen incitation to disorder which are characteristic of radical publications. Freedom from responsibility often is interpreted as freedom to libel, and objective reporters as well as commentators who check their material, discarding rumor, sometimes marvel at the effrontery of those who accuse the daily newspapers in publications which are themselves notorious for their disregard of truth, fact and fairness.

They'd Oppose Any Lift Of Libel Laws
There was the time when certain stalwarts of personal journalism dominated the scene—hilarious rowdies who wrote with little restraint and often less truth—but the very critics who chide the standard press of today for temperate expression would be the first and loudest opponents of any proposal to repeal the libel laws so as to permit these papers similar freedom.

It would be said that they were not interested in truth, but only wanted to be relieved of the penalties for persecuting innocent individuals, particularly radicals of the left or right.

It would be a foul conspiracy by the press and big business to abolish the public's only protection against would-be knifing and hacking of its great liberal leaders. Yet if the daily papers did not have their advertising revenues they would have no financial responsibility and would be as free to distort news and lie about innocent citizens as any communist publication.

Daily Press Occupies Position Like Democracy
It need not be argued that of all the libelous irresponsible communist papers are the most brutal, although they are also alert to the cry "red-baiter" whenever a responsible paper, after careful inquiry, put the finger on some political-labor group as a branch of the communist organization.

The American daily press occupies a position similar to that of the democracies beset by communism and Nazi-fascism. Democracy cannot resort to the weapons of communists and Nazi-fascism to defend itself from them, and the newspapers must endure attacks by publications and writers unhampered by the bounds of truth and civility which govern ethical journalism.

Kimberly Amateurs in Victory Over Brillion

Kimberly.—The Kimberly AA champs defeated the Brillion city team 28 to 26 at Brillion. Although the scores differed by a lone point, 4-3, at the quarter, the Papermakers were out in front, 16 to 5, at the half. In the third period they were leading 22 to 13. Bowman, Kimberly center, gathered 13 points with 12 buckets and a free throw.

Sunday the Papermakers travel to Mattson for a game and a week league squad, Danny Fortmann, All-American professional guard, and End Edgar Manske, have resumed post-graduate courses. Fortmann is a medical student at the University of Chicago and Manske is attending law school at Loyola, Chicago. Association is scheduled to speak.

Story of Jerusalem
V.—MOHAMMEDANS AND BRITISH SOLDIERS

It is strange for one place to be a Holy City for people of three religions, but that is true of Jerusalem. It has been, and still is, holy to Jews, Christians and Mohammedans.

Before long I shall speak of the Mohammedan hero, Saladin. He was a leader in defending Jerusalem, and the rest of Palestine, from the Christians during the Crusades.

For the present, let us only make the note that the Crusades, or Wars of the Cross, were not very successful for the Christians. After the last of them, Jerusalem remained under the power of the Mohammedans.

The great Mosque of Omar may be seen today. The inside is richly worked in marble and colored tiles.

One story which guides tell visitors is about a chain supposed to have hung at one time in the Mosque of Omar. The chain was used as a test of truth. If anyone told a lie while under it, he would make a link of the chain fall off.

That old-fashioned "lie-detector" of legend no longer exists. All the links have fallen, the guides declare!

Another Mohammedan story is about a valley on one side of the city. "On the Day of Judgment," we are told, "Mohammed will sit at one side of the valley, while tests of the faithful are made.

"Across the valley, there will be a bridge as narrow as the blade of a sword. All those who have been true believers in Allah and Mohammed will be able to walk across the valley. The rest will fall, and meet their just punishment."

When the World War started, Palestine was in the hands of Turkey, a Mohammedan nation. In the war, the Turks took the side of Germany and Austria-Hungary, making them enemies of Great Britain and France.

In October, 1917, British troops led by General Allenby won battle after battle in Palestine. They came near Jerusalem, but did not turn their cannon upon it, for fear they might wreck some of the olden Christian churches.

By winning power over land around Jerusalem, the British forced it to surrender. The city was captured without a shot being fired into it.

At the close of the war, a plan was worked out for Palestine to become once more the homeland of the Jews. This plan has worked in part. Thousands of Jewish settlers have made their homes in certain parts of Palestine.

Yet there are troubles. Mohammedans in the region want to rule it. Jerusalem today is not Jewish, or Christian or Mohammedan. People of all three religions live in it.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

ago and I was going to call you in the morning."

"That will be nice—if you will. There are some things I'd like to discuss with you." She managed it gracefully, lightly. She needed all her stage experience to make the encounter seem casual. She gave Elaine a conventional smile as she spoke to her.

The tall golden blonde, her long graceful figure swathed in the rich black velvet, a diamond butterfly in her hair, hesitated a moment, then answered:

"Oh, yes, Miss—Marchand; how pleasant to see you again." She glanced regally at the group. David and Allan greeted each other. Noel smiled slightly at Elaine's cool, easy personality. She turned to him and said in a low, warm voice:

"Let's find our hostess, Allan dear," stressing the last word. Allan spoke to Noel:

"We'll be seeing you later," and moved on with Elaine.

When the musicians commenced a dreamy tango, Allan sought out Noel. With David's permission, none too graciously granted, he asked Noel to dance. On the floor, he remarked:

"This is one thing I learned in Buenos Aires."

Noel smiled up at him. "I imagine you do most things well," she answered, making unimportant conversation.

"Flowers in Your Hair"

"There are no right words to tell you how lovely you look tonight," Allan's lips were a little way from her ear.

That's what any polite man would be expected to say to an actress, Noel thought. But Allan went on: "You should always wear white—flowers in your hair."

Noel responded with low laughter.

"I didn't think you'd be back in town so soon," she commented, changing the subject.

"Well, I hadn't intended it this early."

No, went through Noel's mind, but you wouldn't fail to answer your friend's summons. She spoke to him of the Christmas party and Allan repeated how anxious his mother was to have Noel with them.

"I guess I was too stubborn in the beginning; the plan for the strange guests seems less awful as I think of it."

David was waiting when the tango was finished and Noel left the party before they saw Allan again.

On the way home in his car, David said with deliberate nonchalance:

"Your friend and Mrs. Schuyler make quite a romantic pair."

Before she thought what she said, Noel replied, "They were engaged once, you know."

David's laugh took on a soft tolerant tone. "Picking up old threads, eh?"

The telephone ringing awakened Noel next morning, as a bright sun crept through the single window of her room. Sleepily she picked up the receiver but found herself as she heard Allan's voice.

"I'm going back to Claiborne this afternoon. Can't we have luncheon first?" he was asking. And Noel agreed to meet him at the St. Regis at once.

This was the nicest of all her meetings with Allan Collins. Noel decided as she sat across from him in the dark-paneled dining-room. He'd seemed quite serious when she met him but whatever had engrossed his thoughts was put into the back of his mind as they talked about themselves. Noel spoke of her background, her early stage years.

"You don't know much about me, you see," Noel exclaimed as he listened to her reminiscence. And told him more of the seasons in stock companies, and farther back to the little town where she'd been born and lived until she was ten.

"Tell me about your work in South America," she asked at length.

So she spoke of the zinc mines, of the little colony of engineers and workmen, miles away from the nearest town.

"I'm due for a transfer back to the New York office next year. I suppose I shall miss the exciting activities down there."

"But your mother will be happy," Noel offered. She thought to herself: Elaine will be too.

Before they realized it was train time and Allan was leaving her in the lobby. "I'll be seeing you soon," he smiled as he said it. "We'll have some great time, I hope. The country is beautiful now and I'll wish for a snow storm before you arrive."

so that you'll see it at its winter best." Noel found herself looking ahead eagerly to the days in the Claiborne. She thought about it as she went to her small hotel room. There she found a message from David to telephone him at once. It was very important!

NEW YORK—A few rails, aircraft and specialties gave a modest rallying exhibition in today's stock market, but pivot industries generally continued the retreat which started with the new year.

A slow recovery move got under way in the forenoon and initial losses of fractions to a point or more were reduced or cancelled. Buyers were timid throughout, however, and the list backed away again in the final hour. Even the gains of some favorites were erased at the close.

The ticker tape moped during the greater part of the proceedings. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

While Wall street felt that the size of the recent decline warranted at least a technical upturn, speculative forces, on the whole, seemed unwilling to try for a temporary comeback.

Handicapping sentiment, brokers said, was the relief spending battle in congress, signs of a seasonal drying up of business in some districts and doubts concerning outcome of the "appeasement" campaign being waged by British Prime Minister Chamberlain in Europe.

Selected carrier lines tilted forward in the bond division. Most major commodities were in arrears. Wheat at Chicago was off 1/4 to 1/2 of a cent a bushel and corn down 1/4 to 1/2 cent. In late transactions, was unchanged to 20 cents a bale lower. Foreign securities markets weakened.

DEPORT NON-RESIDENT

Recipients of Relief

Madison—(P)—The city of Madison today began deporting non-resident relief recipients.

Seven families, including 11 adults and 27 children, were in the first group to be sent back to former homes because the city has decided it can no longer bear the cost of caring for them.

Miss Doris E. Lehner, assistant city attorney, said hearings on eight more "cases" would be held within a week.

Superior Judge Roy H. Proctor issued orders yesterday for the removal of the seven families, all of whom came to Madison from Dane county communities. The judge said his orders in such cases are final and cannot be appealed.

Thomas J. Dorman, city relief director, presented the petitions for removal of the families from relief rolls. He said the city receives no compensation for costs of administering non-resident relief or educating non-resident children, and that 25 per cent of the WPA jobs here are held by non-residents.

Japs May Open River To Foreign Shipping

Shanghai—(P)—Reliable foreign sources said today Japan was working out a plan to open the Yangtze river to foreign shipping on a limited basis.

It was understood that Tokio had relaxed her firm attitude and had authorized Vice Admiral Nishiro, Okawa to enter negotiations to re-open the river as far as Wuhu, 280 miles upstream from Shanghai.

One of the main obstacles, it was said, was the scarcity of Japanese river vessels, which rise to 12 years. The Japanese navy, numerous British ships, would capture the lucrative trade.

As a result, informed quarters reported, Japan was working out a plan under which the number of vessels the various nations would be permitted to use in the river would be limited to the number of Japanese ships available.

U. S. Firm in Refusal to Grant German Right to Discriminate Against American Jews in Reich

basis of differential classification of their own citizens."

The United States, in effect, repeated that she did not admit Germany's right to treat American Jews in Germany differently from American citizens in general.

As to taking up individual cases of discrimination, this government said it was "prepared to examine and settle on the basis of prevailing treaty provisions cases which in the opinion of my government are violations of such treaty rights."

Gilbert, the state department said, submitted with the note a number of specific cases of alleged discrimination against Jews.

This action was in response to a section of the German communication to the United States. It said that the United States embassy at Berlin "had not informed the foreign office of a single case in which, in its opinion, such treaty rights had been violated."

The German note also declared that there was "no general principle in international law according to which a state would be bound to refrain from discriminatory treatment of foreign citizens... based on race or creed."

Berlin—(P)—The German government disclosed today it had declined to assure the United States that all American citizens in Germany would be treated alike regardless of race or religion but said it had offered to seek amicable solution of individual cases.

The issue was raised by Washington's request for assurances that the Nazi anti-Jewish decrees of November would not affect Jews holding American citizenship.

DNB, the official news agency, declared that the United States, replying Jan. 11 to a German note of Dec. 30, had in its viewpoint declared itself willing "to clarify through consultation individual cases at issue."

The agency said that the Nazi government in its Dec. 30 note had declined to grant in principle the United States' request for special rights for American citizens in Germany without regard to race or creed.

The German note was part of an interchange growing out of the Nazi government's recent drastic measures against Jews in Germany.

(The United States sought assurances that Jews in Germany holding American citizenship would not have their treaty rights abridged by the anti-Semitic measures decreed by the Nazi government in November.)

The United States' request for such assurances, DNB asserted, "was based on the claim that it was a fundamental principle of American government to make no distinction between American citizens because of race or religious faith and that it had always denied to other states the right on their part to apply such distinctions to American citizens."

The German government in its note of Dec. 30 recognized the right of the United States to establish certain political principles within its own borders, said the agency.

"It is a different question, however, whether such principles possess binding force for other governments concerning measures falling within their sovereignty," the German note continued.

Veteran Ice Skater Challenges Anyone In 65 to 70 Bracket

New London—Otto Kloeppel, Menasha's 67-year-old skating ace, in a letter Wednesday to Bob Ullrich, promoter of the local W. P. A. skating meet scheduled here Jan. 21, challenged any New London skater between 65 to 70 years of age to a half mile race as a feature of the tournament. Kloeppel is the fellow who last year raced Tony Miller, 65, of Hortonville, before a crowd of 3,000 at Kaukauna. In his challenge he said he placed second at the national meet at Oconomowoc last year against a former world's champion seven years younger than himself. Ullrich will arrange a contest with anyone who cares to take up the challenge.

Thursday, Jan. 19, has been set as the deadline for entries in the New London skating meet and names and age divisions must be mailed or telephoned to Ullrich by that date. The usual ribbon awards will be made and the first three place winners in each event will be qualified to enter the county meet here the following week.

100 Women at Anniversary Program of Dorcas, Mission Groups at Methodist Church

New London—More than 100 women attended the eighty-third anniversary program by the Dorcas society and Women's Home Missionary society at the Methodist church yesterday afternoon. A program by the Sunday school department at 7:30 last evening concluded the week's anniversary observance.

Visitors from Appleton, Bear Creek, Stephenville and Clintonville were introduced to the gathering by the Rev. R. R. Holliday after the welcome by Mrs. G. A. Wells, president of the Dorcas society, and the response by Miss Lottie Lohr of Stephenville. Dr. and Mrs. I. E. Schlagenhauf of Appleton were honored guests.

"Artistry of Womanhood" was the theme of the main address by the Rev. Adelaide Raby of Whitewater, the widow of a former pastor of the church. Mrs. Raby compared women, young and old, to a flower garden and showed how they can participate and help in church work. Miss Elizabeth Wilson of Appleton, whose father was one of the early district superintendents, related childhood memories of the early history of the New London church. Memorial Service

A candle memorial service was conducted by Mrs. W. J. McKee, president of the missionary society, in honor of three deceased, the Rev. F. P. Raby who influenced the organization of the society 10 years ago and died in 1930; Mrs. Alfred Bruyette, a member; and Miss Grace Andrews, a member of the Junior Queen Esther circle.

Entertainment consisted of selections by a section of the high school girls glee club under Miss Mary K. Donohue.

The promotional exercises of primary students to the junior department featured the evening program last night. Mrs. F. C. Andrews directed the exercises and Bibles were presented to each graduated pupil by Mrs. James Cottrill. The program consisted of readings, recitations, vocal and instrumental solos and duets by members of the all Sunday school classes and instructors. Mrs. Earl Linberg opened the program with a prelude and the Rev. R. R. Holliday concluded with benediction.

Take Part in Program

Appearing on the program were Sharon Rogers, Carl Schoenrock, Jr., Ruth Mary Helm, June Webb, Wayne Toltsman, Elsie Standke, Beverly Meating, Mary Jane Constan and Robert Hammerberg with recitations; Katherine Thorn, Robert Linberg, Joyce Oestreich, Lois Linberg, Jacqueline Christian and Lloyd Nichols with vocal solos; Stanley Cottrill, Helen Thorn and Evelyn Schoenrock with readings. Adeline Miller played a clarinet solo, Audrey Dean a cornet solo, Charity Popke a violin solo and Miss Marie Hanke a piano solo. Vocal duets were given by Barbara Wells and Shirley Maxted, Valois and Marjorie Miller and Marie Hanke and Ben Andrews. Ramona Webb and Yvonne Johnson played a piano duet.

There were songs by the primary department and others by the Junior girls consisting of Jean Christensen, Maxine Maxted, Jean Gadis, Lorraine Jeffers and Jean Graebel.
